LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

It is easy to say that I had no idea what I was getting myself into when I became the Editor of Montage. I knew it would be a challenging experience, but I thought I could take on the world during 2013-2014. Boy, was I wrong... I crumbled and fell. Literally. On these Montevallo bricks. And broke my elbow. However, I managed to pick myself up with the help of some very special people, and finish this rewarding experience.

The first thing I thought of when creating my book was the theme. I'm a Psychology and Social Work major, and the one word that my professors continuosly emphasized was "Empowerment". I wanted this theme to uplift all students, and to show them that they should always feel empowered. I chose the gold ombre for my cover to symbolize the student body. As you grow older and wiser, you become more empowered. Thus, you grow more and more brighter! Shine bright, friends!

THE 2013-2014 MONTAGE IS DEDICATED TO DR. MEREDITH BRUNER TETLOFF

Dr. Tetloff,
You were the first thing I thought of when I created the theme for my yearbook. You have not only instilled empowerment onto me, but within everyone whom you encounter. Thank you for being the whole Social Work Department's role model. Thank you for being mine. Thank you for always having a positive outlook on life and finding the silver linings, even when most can not see any at all. I look up to you so much. You have shown to me this past year what Social Work is all about.

"Faith is good to have. It keeps me going." - John Oliver Tetloff

UPC EVENTS

Every college student loves to have fun and they also love free things, so what's better than free ways to have fun? Here on campus the easiest way for this to happen is through UPC events. UPC stands for University Program Council; they are an organization on campus that has weekly activities and attractions for everyone to enjoy.

UPC is a part of the Student Government meaning that the coordinator is elected every year by the student body of Montevallo. While the head position is elected, the students who help run the events are all volunteers who signed up at the beginning of the fall semester.

Tanya Hoang, the 2013-2014 UPC coordinator, brought amazing things such as the comedy duo Frangela, screenings of movies before they were available to the public, concerts, and, everyone's favorite, Midnight Breakfast.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

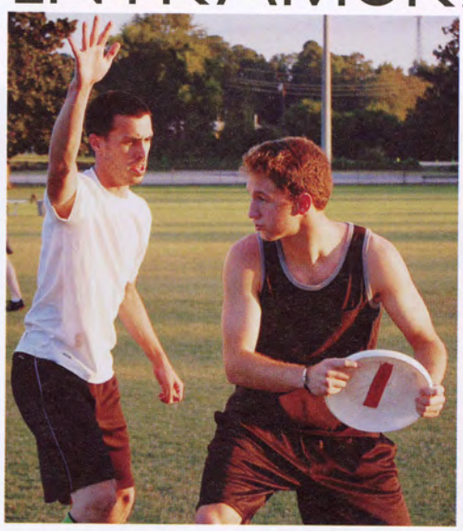
Here at the University of Montevallo, the Student Life office is home to many aspects of campus; one of which is intramural sports.

There are four sports played at various times of the year for students to be involved with; ultimate frisbee, volleyball, softball, and basketball. All of the sports are played tournament style with teams moving on and being eliminated after losing a game. Teams are made by students; anyone can join. The most common teams are from Greek organizations and from existing clubs on campus.

This season of ultimate frisbee was a fun sight for all of those down at the field. It is a time for students to catch up with friends that they have not seen in months, due to summer break, and to relax and watch some fun games. For those playing it is a great stress reliever to get active on the field and play a few round of frisbee with some friends.

By the end of the tournament, that was several weeks long, the gentlemen of Alpha Kappa Lambda came out on top, continuing their winning streak.

An exciting thing happening next year for the intramural teams is the addition of a new field for their use. After using the old soccer practice field for many years, the university is building an all new facility including concession stands, rest rooms, paved walkways, and new bleachers for spectator seating. The field should be ready for use in the 2014 fall semester.



MIDNIGHT MADNESS

It's the first time the University of Montevallo has had a mascot in over a decade. Freddie the Falcon arrived home at this year's Midnight Madness held in Trustmark Arena. He spread his wings and ran out through smoke and the lines of the UM cheerleaders from the locker room to the basketball court. The crowd yelled for Freddie, and he landed in the middle of the gym floor to show his moves as he danced with the cheerleaders.

After Freddie's arrival, the men and women's basketball teams each played a short game. Students also competed in relays across the court and raffles, which included laptop giveaway.

There was free food, and T-shirts were handed out as people walked in the door. A photo booth was set up before and after the event, and students could even get a picture with Freddie. The event was held by SGA and the athletics department.

GENDER VS. SEX

Frank Curtis, the Education Chair of Spectrum, speaks with Montage about Gender Identity.

Q:

1) What does gender identity mean to you?

2) How would you recommend people who don't understand the concept of your gender identity?

3) What advice would you give someone struggling with gender identity to empower them?

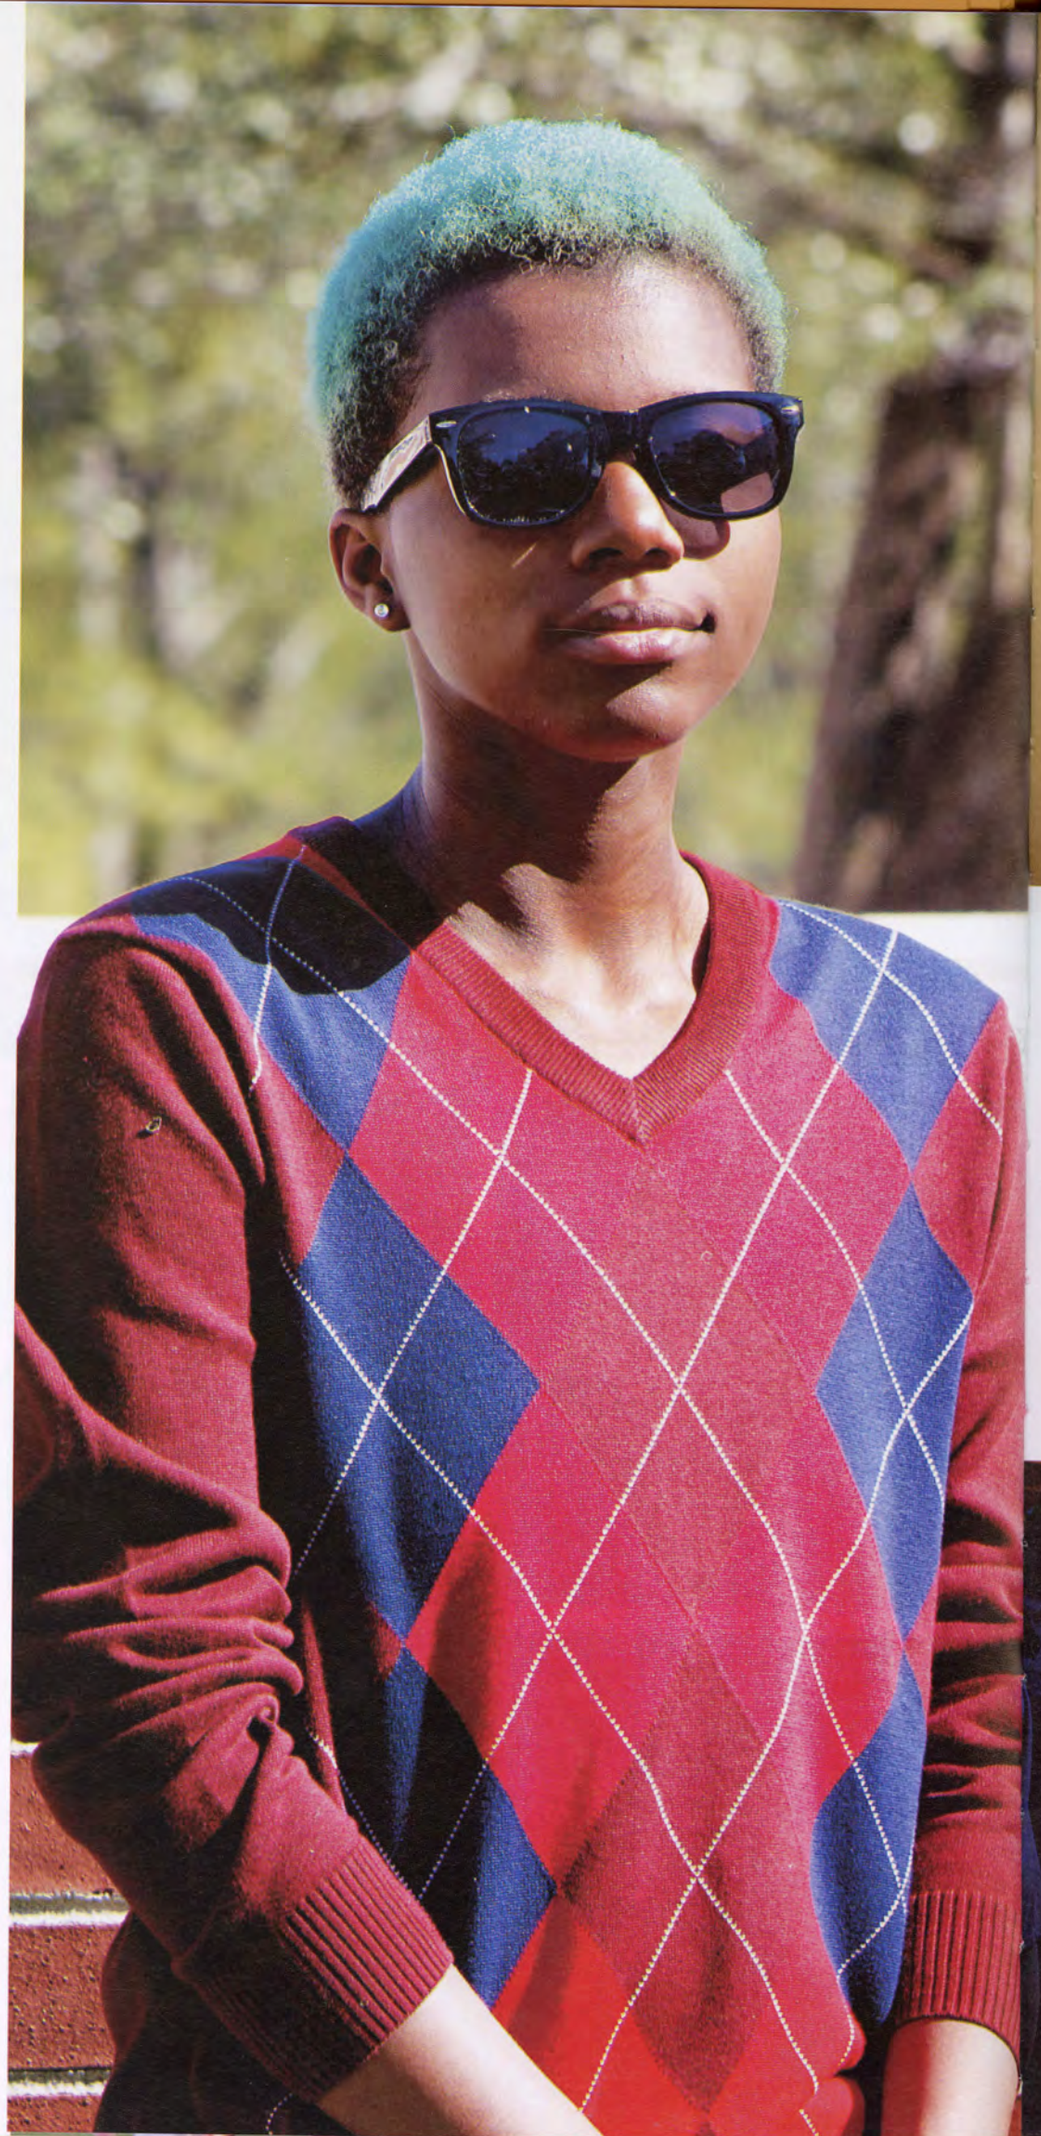
A:

1) Gender identity and gender are basically synonymous in that how one identifies as a man or woman or anything is their gender/ gender identity. (Qualifying gender with the phrase of "gender identity" has subtle implications of that persons' gender identity being less real- i.e. you identify as a woman vs. you ARE a woman.)

2) If it was a friend, I would sit down and give them resources (Spectrum). This answer would depend mostly on who they are.

3) I would say explore the options as you want to explore as fully as you want to explore them. Little by little, work on figuring it out.

If anyone needs any resources or somebody to talk to, come to a Spectrum meeting, or email me directly at lcurtis@forum.montevallo.edu



ACCEPTANCE

The University of Montevallo is known not only for its liberal and flamboyant campus, but for the eclectic mix of college students residing here. It is essential to shed light on sexuality, whether it be regarding the different dimensions of the word, or as a whole. I interviewed a few university students on acceptance, because I wanted to empower individuals who may not have had a chance for their voice to be heard otherwise. Due to so many people identifing themselves differently, sexuality can be a challenging topic to talk about. However, the majority of the students stated that Montevallo was a very accepting place, and that they could fully embrace their sexuality on campus.

A: MaryAdeline Ragland

Q:
1) How did you come out?

2) When did you become comfortable with your sexuality?

3) Do you feel that the University of Montevallo is accepting of who you are as a person?

1) I came out to my parents first and that was when DOMA and Prop 8 was going on in the Supreme Court. Then I told everyone on Facebook on National Coming Out Day Oct. 11, 2013.4.ww

2) I did not become comfortable with my sexuality till this past summer in 2013.

3)I feel very accepted here at the University of Montevallo as well as encouraged to be myself.

A: Jason McClure

1) I came out first to a boy I had a crush on (it didn't pan out anywhere), and then proceeded to come out gradually to very close friends.

2) I fluctuated between being comfortable and trying to change my sexuality for several years.

3) The university itself does not seem to discriminate in any way. I'm treated no differently by faculty or staff. The students, however, are more mixed. There are many LGBT and allies on campus, but there are also people who don't accept me and my sexuality.

A: Ashton Kupferberg

1) I came out the first time because my brother ratted me out to my mom in 8th grade. He was gay too and I guess he was trying to get the heat of his back.

2) became comfortable with my sexuality in 8th grade when I got my first girlfriend.

3) I feel very comfortable at UM. Some people weren't friendly right off the bat, but once they got to know me, they all warmed up very quickly. Montevallo's environment is very diverse and it helps people by giving them the opportunity to experience things they have never seen before.

MONTEVALLO CONFESSIONS

During the 2013 Spring semester, a Facebook page took the campus by storm. Montevallo Confessions was created by an anonymous student at the university for the purpose of letting students get things off of their chest while also remaining anonymous themselves; whether it be secrets, opinions, or advice to others.

The page quickly caught the attention of everyone as confessions poured in. Many people used it to disclose their secret crushes on friends or total strangers; some used it to call out people for their actions. One of the more memorable posts was from a student who finally decided to come out as gay, to which many rallied behind the poster to show support.

In the first few months of operation the hottest news was finding out about the sex life of the university soccer team. Reports of port-a-potty hookups, threesomes, and much more quickly spread throughout the school. No one can be sure of how true these claims are due to the anonymity of the posters but they sure did create quiet a buzz.

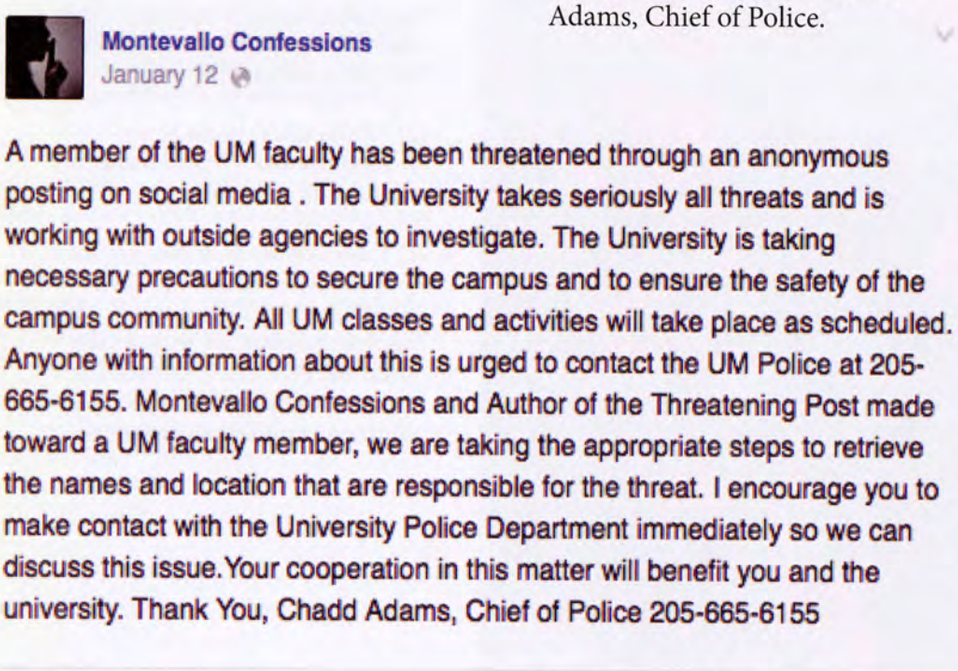
Right: The anonymous post from a January Facebook message which threatened a female English Professor.

Below: Response from Chadd Adams, Chief of Police.



Montevallo Confessions
January 12
A member of the UM faculty has been threatened through an anonymous posting on social media . The University takes seriously all threats and is working with outside agencies to investigate. The University is taking necessary precautions to secure the campus and to ensure the safety of the campus community. All UM classes and activities will take place as scheduled. Anyone with information about this is urged to contact the UM Police at 205-665-6155. Montevallo Confessions and Author of the Threatening Post made toward a UM faculty member, we are taking the appropriate steps to retrieve the names and location that are responsible for the threat. I encourage you to make contact with the University Police Department immediately so we can discuss this issue.Your cooperation in this matter will benefit you and the university. Thank You, Chadd Adams, Chief of Police 205-665-6155

As more and more people became avid posters and readers the contents of the page began to change. If people wanted information spread quickly around campus Confessions became the best way to do so. Students also began to reach out for help when they were suicidal and had plenty of people come to their aide.

The event that caused the posting to come to a grinding halt was when a student threatened a teacher via the page. The threat was not direct calling the teacher out by name but the person who sent in the confession did say that they "[dreamed] about shooting her in the face during class". The admin took down the post once the university police got involved and posting of confessions stopped. The last thing said on Montevallo Confessions tells students to give any information they have to UMPD and that was on January 13, 2014.

In the absence of the original confessions page two subsequent attempts at restarting the page have been made by stude nts who are not associated with the original. Neither have gained the same popularity. This can be attributed to the fact that the pages are not well known as well as that the craze has passed.

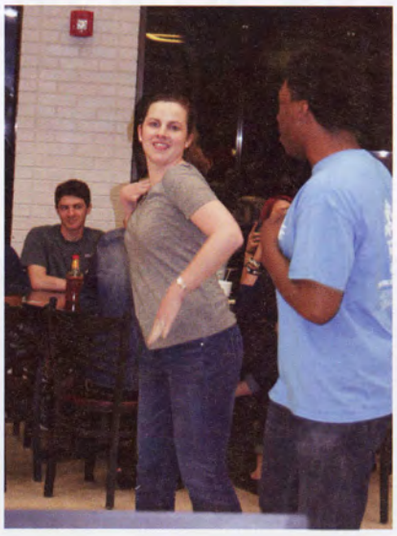
MIDNIGHT BREAKFAST



Midnight Breakfast is a bi-annual event held by Student life in which students unite for free pancakes and de-stress time before finals approach. The Caf opens at 10pm, but students usually arrive at least thirty minutes before so they avoid a long line. Upon entering, peers can gather around an oxygen bar, relax in massage chairs, make street signs, or dip their hands in wax to form a mold. After everyone has enjoyed their "breakfast," members of AKA, Delta Sigma Theta, and Zeta Phi Beta join together to step around the caf and squeal. Once everyone's attention has been caught, people usually flock to the front of Anna Irvin and dance to hit music. Although this UPC event ends at midnight, the memeories made last a lifetime.

BACK TO SCHOOL BASH

Every year, the University of Montevallo holds a Back To School Bash to show incoming Freshman and transfer students what organizations the university has. This organizaiton fair is directed towards students who want to be involved on campus, but don't know which organizations they would like to be a part of. Rows of tables are lined up all across the quad, and everything from information pamphlets to candy is distributed. In the picture above, Emilee Richards talks to Amy Hester and Natalie Hoffman about the Secular Student Alliance.

Kim Hagood, President of Best Buddies, is excited to have a new member sign up for her organization!

TAKE FLIGHT WEEKEND

Take Flight Weekend is a great way for incoming freshman and transfer students to mingle with others and get a good feel of campus, without the stress of feeling isolated. In the photograph above, Maddy Vines and Evann Byrd dance with new friends at Trippin' on the Bricks.

BODY MODIFICATION

The altering of one's aestetic look is an empowering way for an individual to freely express how they want others to perceive them. Since Montevallo has approximately 3,000 students on campus, it is easy to spot someone with body mod and wonder what each piece of artwork symbolizes. To understand more about the topic, I interviewed a few people about what their body mod means to them:

Q for interviewees with tattoos:

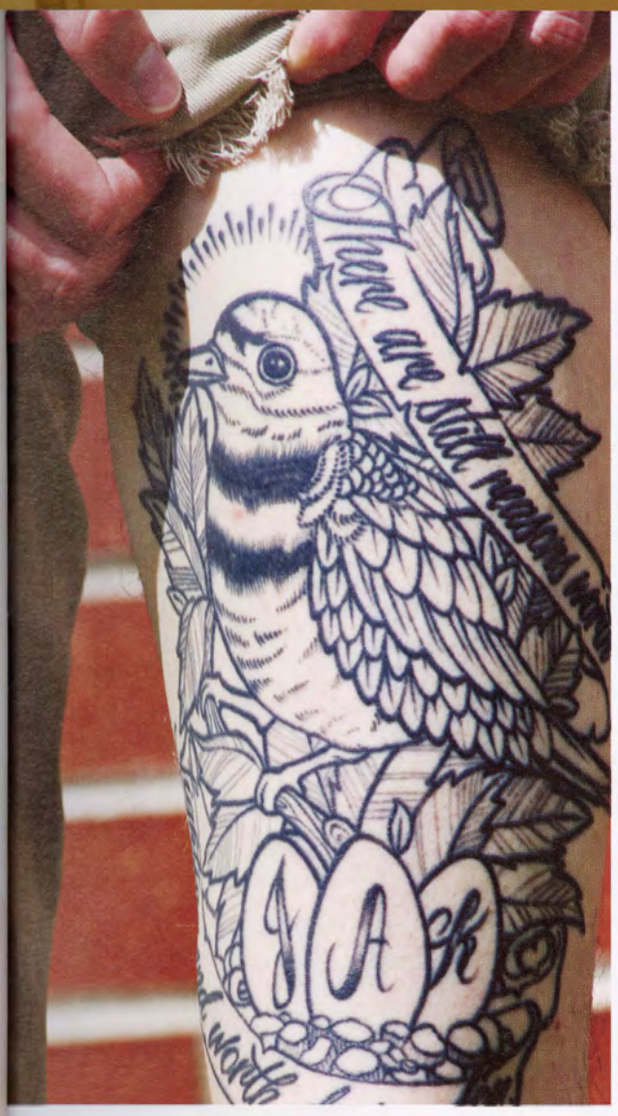
1) When did you get your first tattoo? 2) Why did you choose this particular piece of art? 3) Do you want to get more? 4) Do you regret getting a tattoo? 5) Do you feel that having artwork on your body is empowering? 6) Do you think that your tattoos hinder future job opportunities?

Q for interviewee with stretched ears:

1) When did you first decide to stretch your ears? 2) Why did you choose this particular art form? 3) Do you want to get more piercings? 4) Do you regret stretching your ears? 5) Do you feel that having stretched ears is empowering? 6) Do you think that your stretched ears hinder future job opportunities?

A: Lindsay McCormick

1) When I was 18. I was in Florida and I was on my way to visit my grandparents. 2) I've wanted them since I was 16. I've always liked the idea of flight and being free and that's what the angel wings symbolize. I guard at this point in my life, it would be a good time to get it. 3) Mhm. A lot. 4) No. 5) Yes, because I feel like I can express myself without talking, doing so through my artwork. It's like a part o the inside of me on the outside. 6) No, because I consciously got them in places that I can hide with clothing, so that shouldn't be an issue.



A: Josh Keyser

1) I was 18. 2) The bird is very protective of its young. It symbolizes me being protective of my little sister. She's essentially like my daughter- I treat her like my daughter. Her special needs promotes me to show special care over her. 3) Yes. 4) No. 5) Yeah. I like having it on me. I wouldn't say that it necessarily empowers me to do anything. They are essential little reminders of morals and aspects of my life. 6) No. Any career field that I would go into, tattoos would be encouraged.

A: Jon Mackenzie

1) When I was 17. 2) Well, I was at a time in my life where I didn't know who I was, so I decided to get a sleeve because that was who I wanted to look like. It's kind of like a spiritual journey. It's very meditative getting that much work done. 3) Absolutely. 4) Not a bit. 5) Yeah, it's definitely a statement of who I am and it's empowering in the fact that I have it for me and no one else. It's very self-fulfilling. 6) No, because it's 2014. The tattoo culture is considered a valuable art form, and personally, any job that I get my personality will be what they look for. I'll never let anyone degrade me like that. If it's a job I can't have tattoos at, they wouldn't interest me in the first place.

A: Amy Matthews

1) I was 15 when I first started stretching my ears. 2) It's mainly an aesthetic thing. It's just what you like. 3) Probably not piercings. Maybe tattoos. 4) I don't regret stretching my ears. 5) I feel like it's a form of expressionism and as an artist yourself… To me that's art. Diversity. 6) Considering I go to a Liberal Arts college, I feel like I threw out any consideration for a societal standards in the workplace.

SORORITY BID DAY

Sorority bid day is one of the biggest events of the year. It's where each girl going through recruitment finds her home, her family, and most importantly, her long-lost sisters. At the beginning of this nerve-wracking process, each girl gets settled into a group where she gets mentored by a Pi Chi, or a girl who disaffiliated herself from her sorority all throughout recruitment to help guide future greek life girls into unbiasely choosing where they belong. The girls going through recruitment go to numerous parties hosted by each sorority, where they get a little taste of what their sisterhood is like. They visit their hall, watch a short clip about their Philanthropy, and even get to watch a skit that the sorority members do for them! As the girls narrow down their options, they then choose three sororities that they could potentially see themselves in, and go to their open house nights, philanthropy nights, and pref nights! Pref night is the most significant one, because that is when the girls narrow down their choices to either one or two sororities, and have a final get-together with them before they choose who they want. Although Pref night is different for every sorority, it has a special significance in the lives of everybody. It is the last night before the sorority members see their new sisters, the last night that graduating seniors get to do recruitement, and the very last night that the sisters have to be without their disaphiliated Pi Chi sisters. The next morning, the girls going through recruitment get an evelope with a bid from their new sisters. Every girl must sit on their envelop on the steps of Palmer until told to open them. When they rip apart the paper, a numerous amount of ecstatic, crying, and screaming girls run across the lawn of the Quad to their new home, their new sisters, and their new happy lives as members of Greek life.

FRATERNITY BID DAY

After getting to know the Fraternity men on campus, every person going through recruitment finally got to be at home with their new brothers.

The fraternity men ended recruitment week by congratulating their new brothers with open arms. The three chapters' hard work paid off with Alpha Kappa Lambda receiving eight new members, Alpha Tau Omega receiving fourteen, and Lambda Chi Alpha also receiving eight.

Bid Day was held in Palmer Auditorium. Each potential new member walked on stage and accepted a bid by choosing the hat with letters he wanted to represent. The new brother then excitedly walked down the steps of the stage to be invited into his brotherhood with open arms.

One new member in particular was a unique asset to Fraternity Bid Day. Vibhaas Basukala was especially welcomed home to his new fraternity with a standing ovation by all of the Greek men in Palmer. He is visually impaired and was honored as he accepted his bid and made his way down to Lambda Chi Alpha.

Each fraternity ended the ceremony by yelling their organization's chant with their new brothers, all who were ecstatic to finally be at home. Although some new members may not have known the exact words in their chant, they were at ease with the love of their new families.

SORORITY POSES

Learning how to sorority pose is essential for every member in Greek Life. Whether the girls pose doing their sorority hand sign, squat with their hands on their knees, or tilt while holding onto their sister, the sorority poses are primary for pictures preparing for formal, semi-formal, at mixers, and many more! Featured on this page are Anna Beth Shelton, Allie Crook, Emilee Richards, Jessi Corser, and Kimberly Thomas, who so easily and beautifully show how to do the different kinds of sorority poses. Emilee Richards is "Popping a Gamma" as she and her Delta Gamma Sisters would say, where the other four how to pose while showing their letters! At the bottom of this page, the girls do their hand signs, which is also vital to know if you are a sorority woman. Although these girls make their hand signs seem incredibly easy, do not be so easily persuaded. It takes lots of practice in front of the mirror to get it as perfectly as theirs! The easiest ones to do out of the five signs would have to be Alpha Delta Pi's hand sign, as they call "Throwing Diamonds", or Chi Omega's hand sign. The intermediate ones are Delta Gamma's (which is shaped to look like their Greek letters), and Alpha Gamma Delta's hand sign. The hardest hand sign to do, which evidentally gets easier the more you do it, is Phi Mu's hand sign. These hand signs are an easy way for sorority girls to quickly take pictures with their sisters, other sorority women, or even Fraternity members!

THROW WHAT YOU KNOW

ALPHA DELTA PI'S
THE AMAZING RACE

For Alpha Delta Pi's spring event, the sorority held "The Amazing Race". All of the proceeds went to their philanthropy, the Ronald McDonald House Charities. The Amazing Race is a relay race in which those competing for the finish line have to do a series of insanely silly events such as spinning around on a baseball bat, doing a game of corn hole, hula hooping, AND jump roping, all in order to get to the finish line!

Alpha Delta Pi also had a contest to see which fraternity or sorority donated the most pop tabs, which are what the sorority brings to the Ronald McDonald House in Birmingham! It was very close between Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Mu, but the gentlemen of ATO donated the most pop tabs to RMH.

Josh Keyser (left) jumps rope to get to the next task, while the Big and Little duo, Elizabeth Rhinehard and Allie Crook (far left) run in their socks so they can get to the clown shoes.

Tasha Phelps and Emily Lepper (bottom) run their way to the finish line!

LIP JAM

Alpha Gamma Delta's philanthropy event, Lip Jam, is a friendly competition between the greeks that involves lip singing to a dance routine. All procedes from this event go towards finding a cure for type 1 juvenile Diabetes. It also serves as a scholarship for sistrs in need! They aways raise about a thousand dollars with the event because it is well known around campus and everybody enjoys attending it.

Each greek organization is assigned a specific theme where they mash up different songs according to the theme, which was boy and girl bands. The brothers of Alpha Kappa Lambda performed and won with a heart warming routine of NSYNC songs. After their perfomance ended, no one wanted them to go Bye Bye Bye!

Alpha Tau Omega's theme was the popular British boy band, One Direction. One of the brother's even wore a squirrel outfit with an Alpha Gam jersey. Their perfomance lit up the audience's world like nobody else! In the picture below, members of Lambda Chi support not only the philanthropy, but Alpha Gamma Delta by posing like squirrels.

DELTA GAMMA'S ANCHOR SPLASH

The Delta Gamma sorortiy hosted its 22 annual Anchor Splash in the UM Student Activity Center Thursday night, October 24 in support of their charity, Service for Sight. Turn out was described as good by those running the event as there were more than enough people to line the perimeter of the pool several people deep. Money brought in by the event is expected to exceed $1000 and all proceeds will go toward Camp Jared, a camp for blind and vision impaired children.

Anchor Splash included water sport activities like save the mermaid where fraternity brothers had to carry a sorority sister on an inflatable dolphin across the pool and back. Also included were the dolphin relay, where participants pushed a beach ball with their nose, and the wet t-shirt relay. A twist on the popular wet t-shirt competition, the relay required participants to put on a wet t-shirt, swim across the pool and change shirts with their partners.

In addition to the relays sororities and fraternities also delighted the crowd with several synchronized swimming routines. One included an homage to Michael Jackson's Thriller music video while another was a tribute to Disney's Little Mermaid. Those in attendance were also given the opportunity to participate in a raffle for prizes included free meals at places like Moe's and Chick-fil-A.

ALPHA KAPPA LAMBDA HUNGER GAMES

Alpha Kappa Lambda's 3rd Hunger Games was held on Thursday March 6th, 2014 on Main Quad. The event lasted from 3:00-5:00 P.M., with admission being only $3.00. Numerous organizations and greeks came out to help donate to AKL's philanthropy, These Hands Don't Hurt and the Shelby County Safe House.

The Hunger Games is an obstacle course full of interesting activities. The participants had to do a series of events such as army crawl through chocolate syrup, throw a football through a target, roll a tire for a significant amount of time across the Quad, toss a frisbee, and attempt a water balloon battle.

Many students found it entertaining to watch members of their organization attempt to kick the football after just being stuck in a very sticky situation!

ALPHA KAPPA LAMBDA
PIE AN AKL

Alpha Kappa Lambda also held Pie an AKL, which was located on the lawn in front of Farmer. This event allowed anyone who purchased a "pie" to fill a paper plate up with whipped cream and pie members of the fraternity.

Although many people who pied the boys were either friends, significant others, or classmates, some teachers even participated! Featured in the picture on this page, Professor of Business, Roderick MacPherson, purchased enough pies to pie all of his students!

Unfortunately, Justin Arsement was the first of MacPherson's students to get pied. Arsement's brother, Josh Keyser, who is also particpatig in the event, laughs as MacPherson smashes the plate in his face.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

The Greek community welcomed 17 men and one international fraternity this spring. From February 6 to March 22 two field secretaries from Phi Gamma Delta - also known as FIJI - recruited founding fathers of UM's first Greek colony since Alpha Kappa Lambda in 1995.

Adam Wagner and Josh Wiseman met interested students through recommendations, casual events, informational meetings, and unofficial interviews. Campus sororities filled out forms recommending men who embodied FIJI's gentleman ideal, valuing friendship, knowledge, service, morality and excellence.

Wagner and Wiseman demonstrated FIJI's dedication to academics by offering two scholarships. The Academic Achievement Award gave $250 to FIJI associate brothers who earned 3.2 or higher GPA's in their first semesters. In addition, the White Star Scholarship presented up to $1,000 to all UM men regardless of Greek affiliation.

The colony at UM joins a coalition of Alabama chapters at UA, AU and UNA. Those groups are part of a network across the United States and Canada comprising more than 8,000 undergraduate members in 126 chapters and 19 Delta Colonies. Since its inception in 1848 at Jefferson College (now Washington & Jefferson College) in Canonsburg, Pa., the brotherhood has included more than 150,000 students.

On March 13, 2014, Wagner and Wiseman introduced 18 founding fathers to the campus at the banquet on the following day. The founding fathers began a process of pledge education to learn about FIJI's history and how best to extend it into the future.

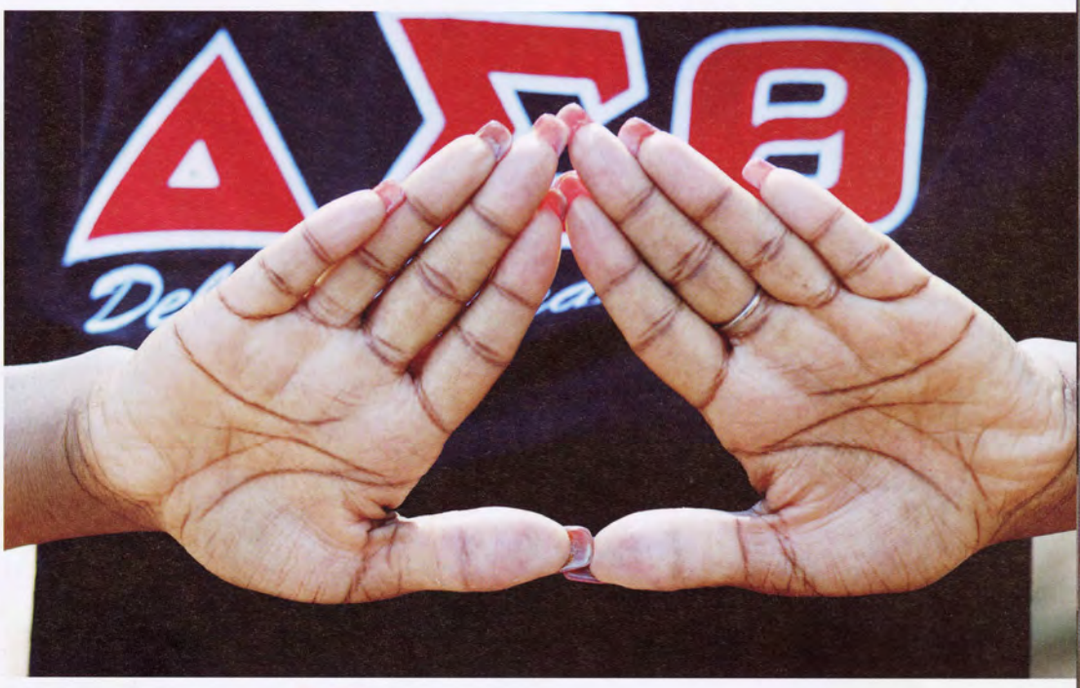
HOW TO STROLL

Briana Brown of Zeta Phi Beta and Ikeia Thrash of Delta Sigma Theta pose while doing a few of their steps that they use routinely in their strolling.

THROW WHAT YOU KNOW

Delta Sigma Theta Sorority was founded on January 13, 1913 by twenty-two collegiate women at Howard University. These students wanted to use their collective strength to promote academic excellence and to provide assistance to persons in need. The first public act performed by the Delta Founders involved their participation in the Women's Suffrage March in Washington D.C., March 1913. Delta Sigma Theta was incorporated in 1930. There is only one active member of this sorority on campus, but she is sure to be seen stepping at student life events! Their chant is:

"All of my love, my peace and happiness
I'm gonna give it to Delta."



Zeta Phi Beta Sorority was founded on the simple belief that sorority elitism and socializing should not overshadow the real mission for progressive organizations - to address societal mores, ills, prejudices, poverty, and health concerns of the day. Founded January 16, 1920, Zeta began as an idea conceived by five coeds at Howard University in Washington D.C.
Although there is only one active member of ZPB in Montevallo, the sorority sign is thrown at any chance possible!
Their chant is:

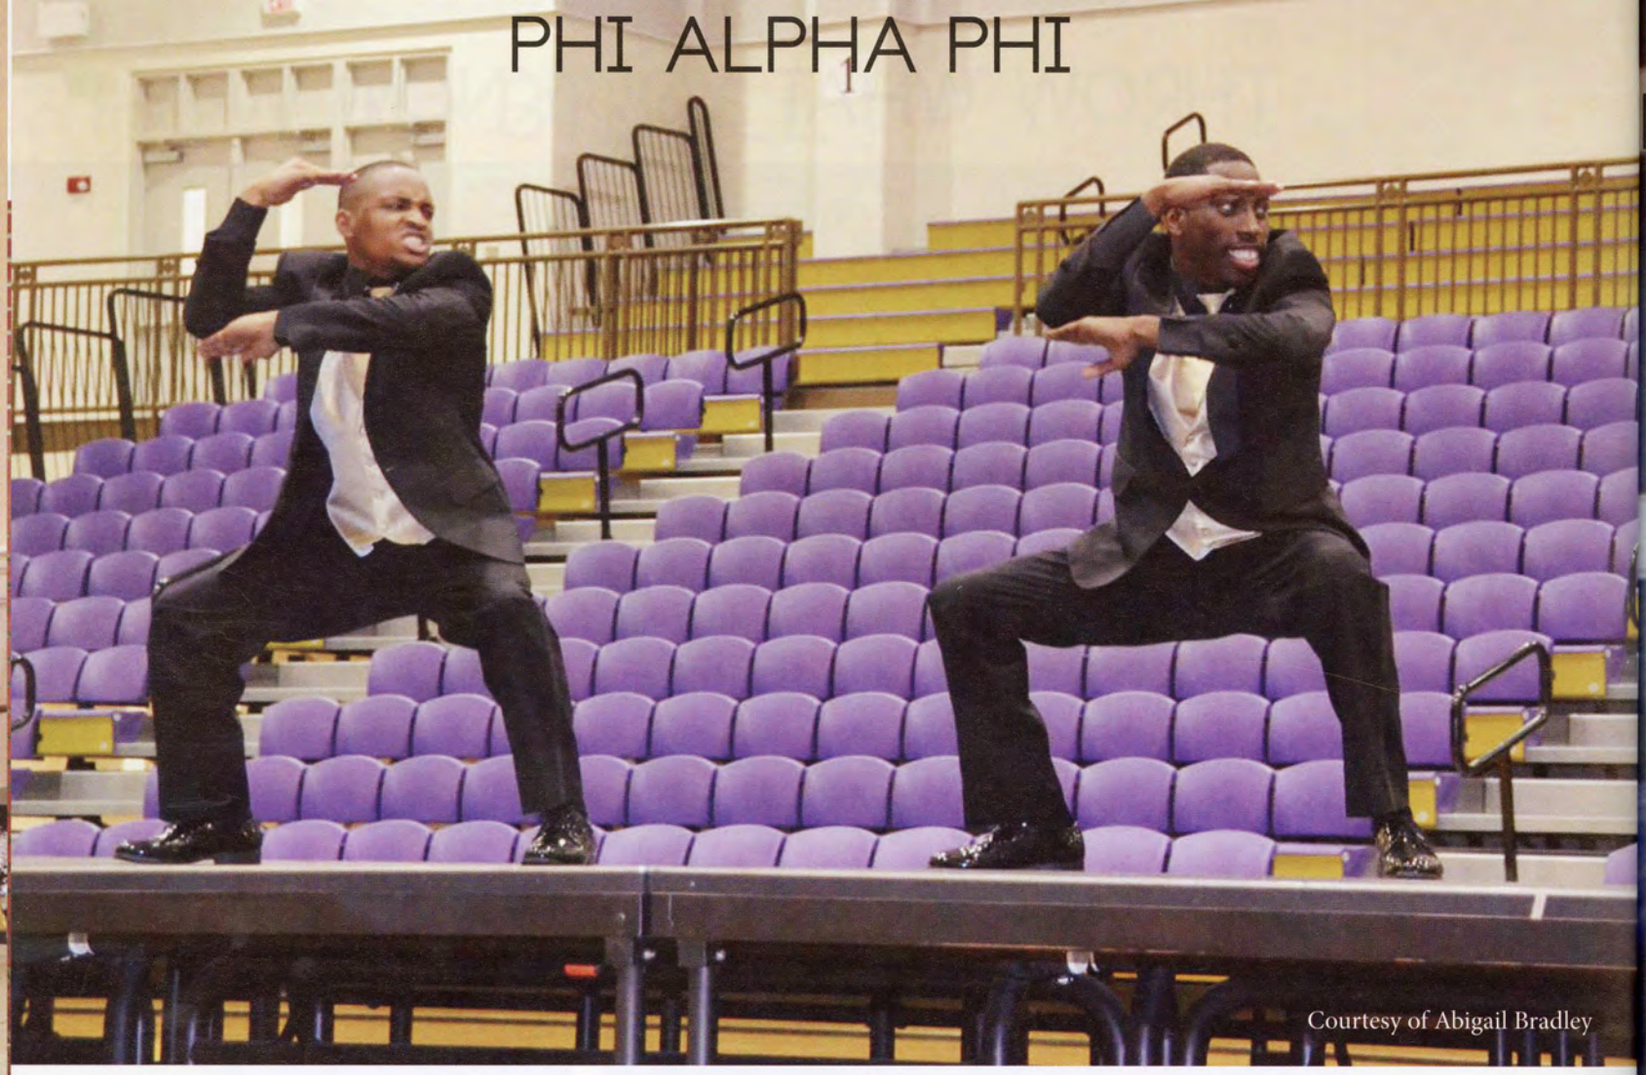
"1-2-3-4-5
Zeta Phi Beta till the day I die
No skee
no wee
no DST
cause Zeta Phi Beta is the one for me."

Only the members of Alpha Kappa Alpha know the meaning behind their hand sign. However, they do allow the public to know the meaning behind other symbols incorporated in their sorority!

The ivy leaf signifies strong and lasting friendships. This association is derived from its ability to stay attached to a rocky surface in even the most inhospitable conditions. Women of Alpha Kappa Alpha exude strength and endurance like the green ivy leaf. Their chant is:

"AKA what ya do to me
You make me feel so good
AKA what you do to me
Just like I knew you would.
We cross the burning sands
To find something new
We cross the burning sands
To find real womanhood."

PHI ALPHA PHI



Courtesy of Abigail Bradley

Directly following the Greek Week talent show, two members were initiated into the University of Montevallo Phi Alpha Phi fraternity. The initiation first started out with the auditorium going completely black and a staticy screen showing a short film about the fraternity. Once the screen shut off and the lights turned on, alum members of Phi Alpha Phi started stepping and shouting all while coming on stage. In front of them were the two new Alphas who were both dressed in black and gold tuxedos and handpainted masks. They were asked questions in which they quickly answered; all of which was done while the anonymous men were stepping. After they were done with their performance, the boys took off their masks and reveiled themselves. Christian Sanders and Jacob Guyton then took their Alpha pledge and became initiated. After their initiation, all members of the Historically Black Greek fraternities and sororities went to the auditoriu floor and stepped with the newly initiated Alphas. It was a perfect ending to a perfect surprise.

More than 100 others gathered in front of the building between Vine and Middle streets this morning to commemorate the debut of the University of Montevallo on Main facility that offers educational space for the institution's Department of Behavioral and Social Sciences.

The project is a joint effort involving the Montevallo Development Cooperative District, which consists of the University of Montevallo, the City of Montevallo and Shelby County government. The 20,000-square-foot facility that will have 17 offices for faculty and seven classrooms took about a year to complete the renovation.

"It was all this guy's vision that made this possible," Wheeler said in an interview this morning, pointing to former Montevallo Mayor Ben McCrory.

McCrory said the planning process to purchase the building from its Clanton owners started about three and a half years ago. The idea was to bring new life to the building and the downtown area.

"It took a while but it exceeds my expectations," McCrory said. "This coming to fruition, I'm just really proud to be a part of it."

The building is expected to draw more than 800 students daily to the downtown area, which is experiencing rejuvenation through other projects including this month's opening of the Barnes and Noble university bookstore and development of the promenade linking the institution to Orr Park. "All of the students coming downtown, it's going to help all of our businesses," McCrory said.

B&N ON MAINSTREET

Walking into the University of Montevallo's Barnes & Noble bookstore on Main Street, the institution's purple and gold colors are everywhere.

T-shirts, sweatshirts and pennants all have the university's colors, while the walls in the newly renovated building at the corner of Boundary and Main streets display school spirit. On one wall in particular is an evenly divided display of attire in either dominant purple or gold color.

"Our alumni are really ecstatic about our purple and gold wall," Bobby Hamous, regional manager of Barnes & Noble College division, told the crowd gathered at this morning's ribbon-cutting ceremony for the store.

The project is the culmination of a partnership between the University of Montevallo and Shelby County government to acquire the building and seek a textbook vendor for the site formerly known as the Lovelady building.

Stewart thanked the various partners on the bookstore project, including the county, the city, the cooperative district and Wayne Davis Construction. "Barnes & Noble has been a great partner so far. We're really pleased," he said.

Inside the store, there are several aisles of textbooks, a section with popular books and DVDs, other areas with backpacks and computer accessories. Store manager Ashley Gothard, who graduated from the university in May, said the purple and gold gear will cater to alumni.

"That is something we're striving to grow to have more purple and gold for alumni," she said. "If we get something purple, we have to get it in gold."

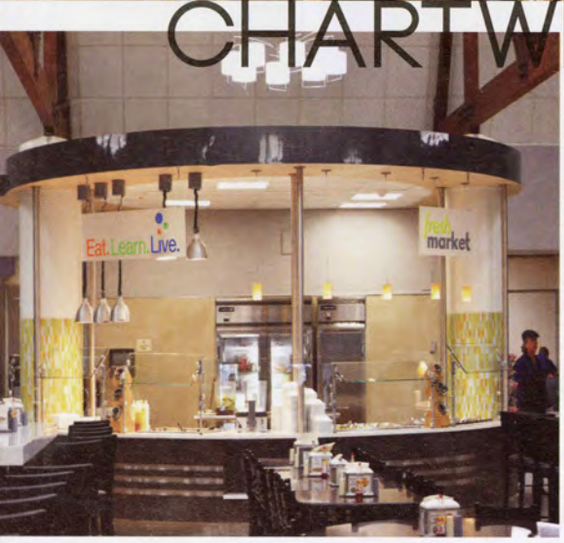
CHARTWELL'S



Goodbye, Sodexo! Students were delighted to hear that a new catering company, Chartwell's, would be taking the place of the previous one. The "caf" underwent some extraordinary changes during the summer of 2013; booths were placed inside the kitchen, television screens were placed all throughout the cafeteria, a 24/7 waffle machine was set up alongside a soymilk station, and a hot chocolate machine was available to the students.

Under the title, Falcon Foods, Chartwells will serve made-to-order entrees of regional and traditional cuisines as well as salads, sandwiches and wraps, bakery items, baked entrees and pastries, all focusing on fresh ingredients and healthy offerings. In addition, Chartwells assures diners that they serve "environmentally friendly and socially conscious foods." At a university that places a high value on sustainability and environmental awareness, this is expected to be a factor in their popularity with students, faculty and staff.

President John W. Stewart III welcomed Chartwells to the UM campus. Representing Compass Group North America, the parent company of Chartwells, were Fred Heaviside, regional vice president; Andrew Willows, regional director; Scott Giddens, Falcon Foods director; and Tommy Brown, who served as interim director of dining services at UM through the transition.

MOE'S

The Student Life Center underwent a transformation over the summer. Work crews removed the World of Wings installation and renovated the space to welcome Moe's Southwest Grill. Above the characteristic cafeteria-style Moe's serving stations, they added an accent wall that continued overhead the "We Proudly Serve" Starbucks. On it they painted a quote from Alexander King: "Actually this seems to be the basic need of the human heart in nearly every great crisis - a good hot cup of coffee."

Billing themselves as "fast-casual" fare, Moe's offers a Tex-Mex menu that includes items such as the John Coctostan quesadilla, the Close Talker salad and the Homewrecker burrito. The franchise has 473 international locations, including a full restaurant in nearby Alabaster.

Olo Sushi also came to campus, stocking the shelves behind the "We Proudly Serve" Starbucks. In previous semesters the space carried a selection of sandwiches and Naked juice, which remained available next to the sushi. The offerings in Carmichael Library stayed much the same.

JOE'S ITALIAN

For everyone in southwest Shelby County who's been anticipating the opening of Joe's Italian Crossroads Café in Montevallo, the wait will soon be over.

The popular Alabaster eatery's new location focusing on takeout is opening Monday at the intersection of Highway 119 and Shelby County Road 22 in north Montevallo, said Sonia Bertolone, president of restaurant owner Forza Unita Inc. I'm excited. I think my dad would be happy," said Bertolone, referring to the restaurant's namesake, Giuseppe "Papa Joe" Bertolone, who died March 6, 2013.

Joe's Italian Crossroads Café will be a scaled-down version of the Alabaster restaurant. Customers can expect the same delicious recipes and high quality of food they enjoy at the Alabaster location, but in a slightly different format. "It's very casual – no pretense. We don't have a dishwasher," Bertolone said.

Instead of china dishes, customers will receive plastic utensils and plates. Customers will order from a counter and there will be no table service in the restaurant, which has 12 two-seat tables.

There are also several selections of pasta dishes including spaghetti and meatballs, lasagna, chicken and eggplant parmigiana, and fettucine alla panna. There's even a gluten-free penne dish available. Customers will be able to order an assortment of family meals complete with a pasta dish, soup or salad and focaccia that can feed four or six people.

The Crossroads Café will offer sub sandwiches all day. "At Big Joe's, we can't," Bertolone said. "We'll have a daily $6.99 lunch special. It'll change every day. It'll be something that's not on the regular menu," she said.

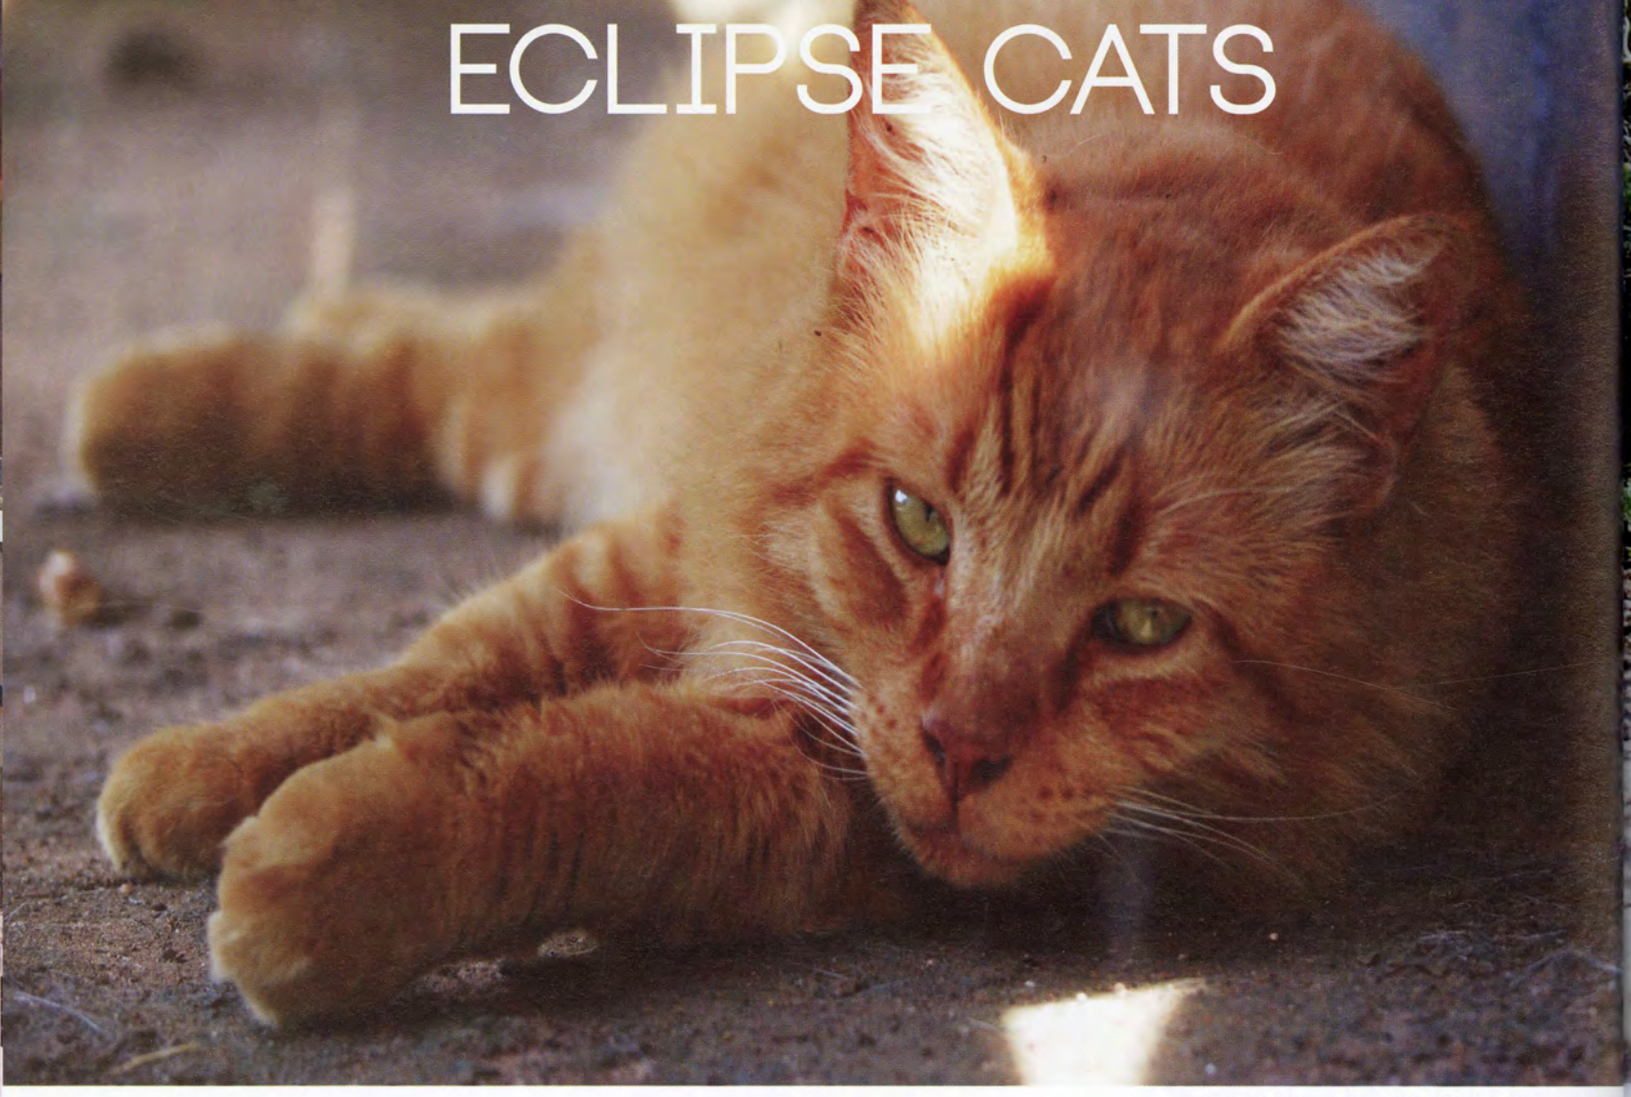
ECLIPSE CATS



Eclipse Coffee and Books is a local coffee shop and eatery located right in the middle of Mainstreet. Started by the Patton family, it has become the go-to place over the years for college students to go to for shows and festivals.

While Eclipse is known for their unique and rich milkshakes, they are also recognized for the numerous amounts of cats that are seen wandering outside the cafe.

Whether it be Willy, F3, Sillyhead, or Doppleganger, students are sure to see one of these purrrrfect felines sunbathing on the porch or cooling off underneath parked cars.

Eclipse's newest edition, Alphie, is a beautiful white cat who was first seen wandering around the perimeter during the beginning of the summer. Upon speaking with a few of the employees about her, she apparently is not the friendliest of the felines, but she still enjoys to be around people. At least she didn't scratch me when I was taking a picture of her; that would have been a CATastrophe!

BIG EVENT

More than 525 students from 33 different campus organizations, as well as two alumni groups, completed service projects at 51 job sites in Montevallo and Brierfield at UM's annual Big Event!

The Big Event took place April 5. Organized and sponsored by the University of Montevallo Student Government Association, the event provides students and others with an opportunity to lend a helping hand in the community the University calls home.

Participating organizations include Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Alpha Kappa Lambda, Alpha Tau Omega, ACDA (American Choral Directors' Association), Amnesty International, BCM (Baptist Campus Ministry), Chi Omega, Delta Gamma, DeltaSigma Theta, FCS (Family and Consumer Sciences) Student Group, Freshman Forum, Golden Key International Honour Society, Housing and Residence Life, Kappa Mu Epsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, Math Club, Minority Student Union,Montage (the yearbook), NAfME (National Association for Music Education), National Pan-Hellenic Council, Panhellenic Council, Phi Chi Theta, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Mu, Secular Student Alliance, Sigma Tau Delta, Spectrum, Student Government Association, University Program Council, Upward Bound and Zeta Phi Beta.

CIVIL RIGHTS

On Oct. 3, the "Civil Rights Leaders: Then and Now" exhibition opened in the gallery of Bloch Hall. It was produced by Montevallo art professor Scott Stephens.

The exhibition highlights photos taken by the late James "Spider" Martin. These photos are the ones taken during the Civil Rights Movement, specifically Bloody Sunday and the March to Montgomery. It also highlights photos taken by Jonathan Purvis, a recent Montevallo graduate and freelance photojournalist.

Professor and Interim Dean of the Art Department Scott Stephens spoke about the exhibition and pointed out the sequence of the photographs. The progression of the photos went from the early days of the Civil Rights Movement with Martin Luther King, Jr., Hosea Williams, Fred Shuttlesworth, Andrew Young and John Lewis. He continued by showing the photos of Bloody Sunday with those leaders and also Amelia Boynn Robinson. At another wall, it showed the successful March to Montgomery, then finally, the more recent photos of Ambassador Andrew Young, Fred Shuttlesworth, Congressman John Lewis and Amelia Boynton Robinson by Jonathan Purvis.

Jonathan Purvis began his freelance documentary work while he was still a student at Montevallo. In 2007, he was the still photographer for a documentary film showing Fred Shuttlesworth's return to Birmingham where he visited many sites, such as his childhood home, former church and the 16th Street Baptist Church.

After his participation in the 50th anniversary commemoration of the March on Washington, Congressman John Lewis was photographed by Purvis for his 2013 portrait season. Purvis also spoke about his different projects and said, "a big part of photography now is caring about the subject you're photographing."

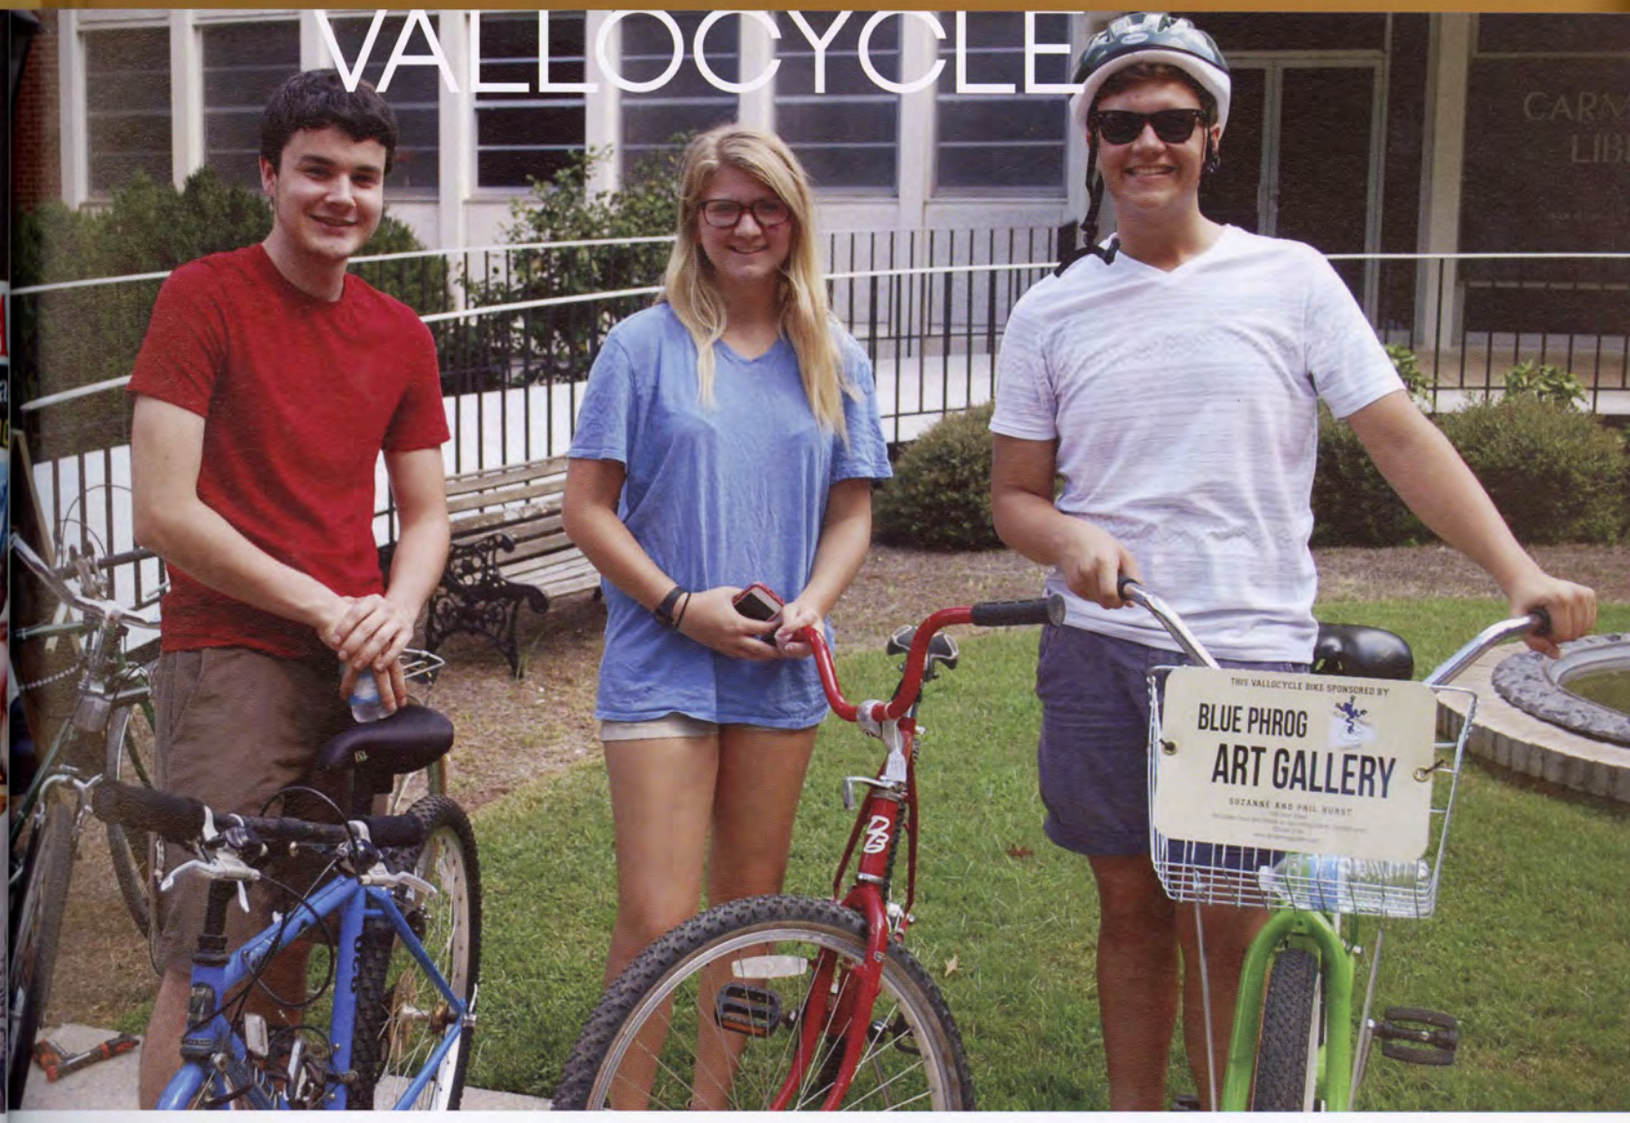
ART WALK

During the Artwalk, our Main Street businesses fill their storefronts with a variety of artworks including, but not limited to: sculpture, paintings, photography and functional art. Residents within the town walls and far beyond flood the streets to enjoy the street party atmosphere. Businesses will provide wine and light refreshments for their guests! Some businesses also provide performance entertainment ranging from artists creating works in front of the store, to piano playing, to face painting and even hands-on art opportunities for visitors.

We are a town full of amazing talent, natural beauty, interesting people, unique businesses, a solid Main Street structure and volumes of potential. Montevallo is rapidly being known as an artists' community and we want to continue to nurture that reputation!

This event will serve as a street celebration with the dual purpose of drawing attention to our downtown businesses and showcasing Montevallo's amazing pool of talent to the broader community of Shelby County, Bibb County, Chilton County and beyond. The hope is that the Artwalk will increase business revenues in town, encourage University students to spend their weekends in Montevallo and bring the community closer together—all in the name of art!

VALLOCYCLE



Formed through a collaborative partnership between the City and University of Montevallo, the ValloCycle Program exists as a city wide initiative to enhance overall community walkability and individual citizen engagement with a lifestyle of sustainable, alternative transportation. The ValloCycle Program's primary means of achieving these goals is through its day-to-day operation of the ValloCycle Bike-Share Program, the first county-wide bicycle sharing program in the state of Alabama to offer low-cost bicycle rentals to all the members of its community. Unlike other nearby campus bike-share programs, ValloCycle bicycle rentals are not limited solely to university students, and are also not confined to one location. Rather, bicycle rentals are offered to all residents of Montevallo and the surrounding Shelby County area in three separate check-out locations. Annual membership fees amount to roughly $2 a month per adults, $1 a month per child, can be paid alternatively by a commitment of community service with a local charitable, campus, city, or religious agency, and also include accompanying helmet and locking mechanisms for user safety and security.

"During the media timeouts they come out on to the floor and dance to music so it gives the audience something to look at other than the cheerleaders," says RJ Severtsgarrd, a mass communications student. RJ attends most home games. The team dances during timeouts, media timeouts, and half time. The girls earn their own funds, put in hours of practice, and choreograph their own routines all without a coach.

THE "TABOO" OF SWITCHING SIDES

To many Montevallo students College Night is the most important time of the year. These players come to every event decked out in their purple or gold to scream cheers and sing side songs. Upon first glance it looks as if everyone hawwt but as you look further, you find that this is not so.

For the majority of students the side they pick is their permanent home for their stay at Montevallo, but for a few they discover that they fit elsewhere.

When this happens these players switch sides, which creates quiet a stir amongst their former side.

When College Night first began using the school colors as team names students were not allowed to pick one side and stay there. Since College Night is the University's homecoming tradition, it was created to honor the school and its alumni. This was the very reason allegiances were not allowed. The powers that be were afraid that if students were allowed to stay on one side that they would no longer play for the right reasons. For decades this was how students played so switching sides was the norm.

In the College Night of today students could not imagine being forced to switch and/or play with people from the other side so when players do it voluntarily they are often looked upon negatively.

"Vintage" Purples have often been seen with signs that read "there's always room for one more traitor" which is a play on the phrase "there's always room for one more Gold." "Old" Golds have also been known to taunt current Purples during events..

Despite the gossip and anger felt from their previous side, those who do switch find themselves happy with their decision. They find families made up of people who love and support them no matter what.

In recent years an abnormally large amount of students have switched. A large group in 2012 switched from Purple to Gold, including Michael Tallon, the 2014 male leader for Gold Side. The next year two Gold Side cast members switched to Purple, one of which is the 2015 female Purple leader Sydeny Fant.

Question: Why did you switch sides?

Answer: Michael Tallon

When I switched to the gold side with Stephen and Joseph Billy and Courtney Ladnier I think we brought with us a wild sense of fun. Now looking back, being purple seems so foreign. I've had nothing but a great time being a gold and being gold leader. I've had the opportunity to bring three crazy, awesome, beautiful ladies to the college night stage- I wouldn't have it any other way.

Answer: Sydney Fant

I switched sides because I didn't really feel like Gold Side allowed me to be the person I am and to fully express and be myself.

Answer: Michael Cleary

As a prospective student in the spring of 2012, I had already made the decision that I would play on Purple side when I came to Montevallo in the fall. All of my friends who had come to Montevallo before me played Purple side, nearly all of my fraternity brothers played Purple side, and so it seemed to make sense that I should also play Purple side. Though after playing one season of Purple Side, I was not personally satisfied with my experience, and realized that it wasn't my place to be. I had quite a few friends on Gold Side, and I began spending more time with them. I really admired the Gold Side because I felt like I was surrounded by positive people who genuinely cared about each other, the opposing side, and the University of Montevallo. It was after realizing all of this that I decided to change my allegiance. There is, after all, always room for one more Gold.

LOVE IS IN THE AIR

College Night is a great place to make friends, and find a family. Students who "go" Purple are taken into the folds of the family and quickly find their place. Purple Side's family community takes those friendships to the next level with Purple Marriages.

Two Purples choose to be together throughout the stresses of College Night, in-season and off, to support each other always. Purple marriages are not limited by social construct, as men, women and every gender in between can join together in Victorious matrimony.

Purple marriages are not limited by real world relationships either; a Purple can be dating one person, but be "married" to another. However, Purple wedding ceremonies are optional, but usually performed. Traditionally, Purple marriages are held on the steps of Palmer, but they can take place elsewhere in Montevallo. The wedding must be officiated by a leader (past leaders are okay, but one of the current leaders is usually preferred). Each participant must have their Purple parent(s)attend, and there must also be a Gold present to object to the marriage.

Once the two Purples are married, they must exchange a ring, cow, or some item of significance. After that, they are able to adopt Purple babies and continue their Purple legacy within the family.

THERE'S ALWAYS ROOM
GOLD SIDE INITIATION

One chilly night in late January crowds of students will be found huddled around the steps of Palmer Hall. Palmer itself seems empty and lifeless from the outside seeing as all lights have gone black. Suddenly a door opens and the haunting sound of the Gold side song is heard. The Gold Side stage manager appears to prep the new initiates. Groups of four are taken into the dark abyss at a time. From there on the details of their journey are unknown to the students and to those who do not hold Gold loyalties.

Once the initiation process has occurred the side members sit in the broken circle, now joined by alumni. Introductions are had and stories told around the circle.

At this year's initiation the Gold alumni chose a theme for their stories, their favorite spot. Many would assume that the spot held most dear by all would be where they heard their catch phrase and knew what it was to win, but this was not the case.

Former leader Melissa Harbison, 2008, was the first to tell her story. She walked over to the Gold side of the Palmer stage and stood in her spot. This was the place she stood as the crushing blow of a loss was announced. She encouraged the current players to work their hardest so that no matter what happened on the Saturday of College Night they would be proud of themselves and of their show.

COLLEGE NIGHT MIXER

The first official event on the College Night calendar every year is the College Night Mixer. It is the first chance for the two sides to come together and strut their stuff.

This mixer is help in the Student Activity Center on campus. The main corridor is open enough to fit both sides plus several hundred new students who are looking to find their home away from home.

Each side steps tables up lining the hall to show off the different facets of our tradition. The newcomers on campus weave their way through the crowd stopping at the station that peeks their interest. This goes on for a couple of hours before the real fun begins.

SGA President Rachel Swokowski took the mic at the head of the hall and called attention to tall in attendance. Both sides' players quick gathered in front of Swokowski dividing into their respective sides.

With the "go ahead" from Palmer Staff and the president Gold Side leaders Michael Tallon and Jana Tauton began the first cheer of the night. All students calling themselves loyal Golds quickly joined the two and created a roar.

Purple leaders Mary-Kate McLaurine and Kory Wilson lead the Purple Side in their cheer of reply, the sound even louder than that of their competitor.

This back and forth continued on for several ore rounds of cheers before the main event goes underway. Cabinet announcement.

Each side read their list aloud and cheers of congratulations filled the room as 93 students were allowed to reveal their positions to their side mates.

The night's festivities wrapped up with both side singing their beautiful side songs for all to hear. This moment tends to be a little funny as experienced players watch for the freshmen to mess up since they are new.

COMING HOME
BABY PURPLE MIXER

In the middle of fall semester, roughly a month after the College Night Mixer, Baby Purples are officially invited into Purple side with the Baby Purple Mixer. Babies are welcomed with food, music, hugs, and taught the basics of being a Purple. Cabinet members are introduced informally, and the group forms a huge circle to learn the side cheers from these experienced Purples. For the first time, Babies lift up their three-fingered Moo Psi Moos and milk the legendary anthem for what it's worth.

The Purple Side also teaches the side song for the very first time. Babies learn the real words to that intimidating chant/stomp they first heard at the College Night Mixer. They also learn the true meaning behind the side song, and why it really is such a sacred event to be able to participate in while "circling up".

This year, leaders Mary Kate McLaurine and Korey Wilson told the stories of how they personally chose to be Purple, and what a special journey it has been for them. They also introduced Baby Purples Coordinator Liz Ann Terry and her assistants Jalen Brown and Hannah Stephens. Liz Ann and her team actively searched out Babies who had yet to be adopted, and found them happy Purple parents. After the Baby Purple Mixer, every new Baby has found their home.

JOINING THE SYMPHONY
GOLD SIDE MIXER

In the latter half of the fall semester Gold Side comes together again to mingle and have fun with their fellow memebers.

This year the Gold Side Mixer took place in the Student Retreat on the far side of campus, welcoming around 100 new Golds. Students were able to talk to each other for a while and enourage the newest members through swapping stories.

After a while, leaders Michael and Jana call order to the crowd and asks them to circle up in preparation for the rest of the night. Before everyone was given a chance to introduce themselves, Tallon and Tauton had special guests that they introduced to the crowd. Former Gold leaders Mary Ried Howard (1991), Machey Rush (2013), and Jenna Bellamy (2011) greeted everyone and shared their excitement for the comming spring semester.

After everyone in the circle had a chance to introduce themselves it was time to learn cheers . Spirit chair Kevin Britt, along with cheerleading captains Morgan Marr and Heather Bowden, lead everyone through the cheers that the side uses at every event. The Golds that have several College Nights under their belts shout out cheers and dance around in excitment.

The finale of the night was teaching the side song where freshmen officially joined the Gold symphony.

RIBBON HANGING

As soon as students arrive back on campus from their winter breaks, College Night events begin. Sunday, January 5, students met at Palmer steps for the first activity of the calendar year, Ribbon Hanging.

The purpose of ribbon hanging is to beautify the campus and to prepare the other students for the festivities to come. This time is also used by the students to catch up with friends and discuss the coming competition. Intermingling of the sides is very frequent. Purples and Golds run together, laughing loudly while racing to the tree they want.

Each participant is given spools of ribbon in their side color and are sent out to two locations on campus. The ribbon is wrapped around the trees on Main Quad, often times topped with large bows provided by alumni. The second location is the area in front of Farmer Hall, where the bushes and small trees are decorated with the same treatment as the Main Quad trees.

This year the College Night Committee decided upon holding the hanging in the day time, a first for this tradition. Normally the event is held at night, but this year the weather threatened with below-freezing temperatures. In order to ensure the players' safety, the Committee chose to simply have the event early instead. At first many opposed the new addition claiming that it simply did not feel like Ribbon Hanging. By the end of the event all of those who had negative feelings about the time difference had changed there minds. The daylight hours allowed for a safer and warmer environment for all of those who participated and allowed students to admire their handy work.

The event ended with traditional circle up of both sides and their songs being sung. The taste of College Night received during the time fueled the players for the coming weeks.

SIGN RAISING AND PEP RALLY

In the early evening one early January night, chants of "Shh, be quiet! The Golds are coming, the Golds are coming," echo through the streets of campus. The Gold Side marches to Farmer Hall in a line with their thumbs held high as they building comes into sight Already standing outside Farmer, the Purple Side cheers loudly to show their competition their side spirit. As the two sides congregate, two structures stand before them wrapped in tarps, each side's sign.

Sign Raising is the point in the competition where each side gives a sneak peek as to what their show is about without revealing too many details. In the past several years the signs have gone from flat pieces of wood painted with the clue on it to three-dimensional sculptures and interactive elements. This year the Gold Side unveiled their's first; a large window, with a glimpse of paradise beyond it panes, with a desk in front of it and a bell to top it off. The Purple Side took their tarps off to show a high seated throne with a cow lounging in it with flowers and fruits draped down its stairs.

Once both signs have been shown off everyone walks next door to Myrick Gym to hold the College Night Pep Rally. Here cheers are shouted back and forth and the full cabinet from each side is announced. The "highlight" of the night is that this is when the sides get to formally annouce the cast for their shows. Until this point the casts had been kept a secret from everyone to ensure no tampering occured, and to add a level of mystery.

This event is largly annticipated due to this being the first event that occurs with both sides present once the competition began. This gives players the chance to experience the other side in this way and to show off a little bit of their hard work.

College Night is more than just two productions, sports are also played between the two teams for "pre-production" points. Women's volleyball is one of the four athletic events that takes place as part of UM's homecoming celebration each year.

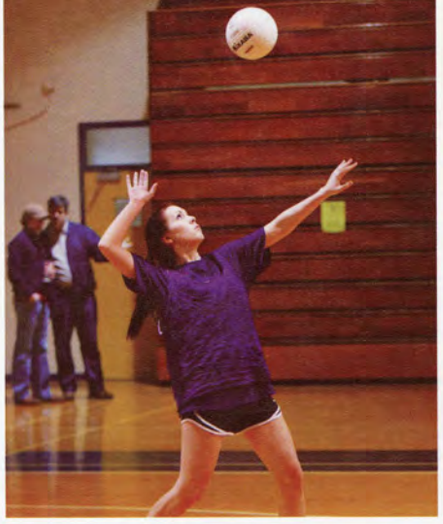
This year the game was intense as Purple Side fought for their first win in women's volleyball in years, but unfortunately this dream wasn't realized. Gold Side quickly won both rounds thanks to the amazing skills of assistant female athletics chair Allie Crook and hair and make up designer Lizzie Bellina.

Despite the skill they faced, Purple Side fought their hardest. The girls dove and chased after balls that launched their way with high energy. During the first set, the Purple girls gave their opponents a run for their money, earning several points back to back.

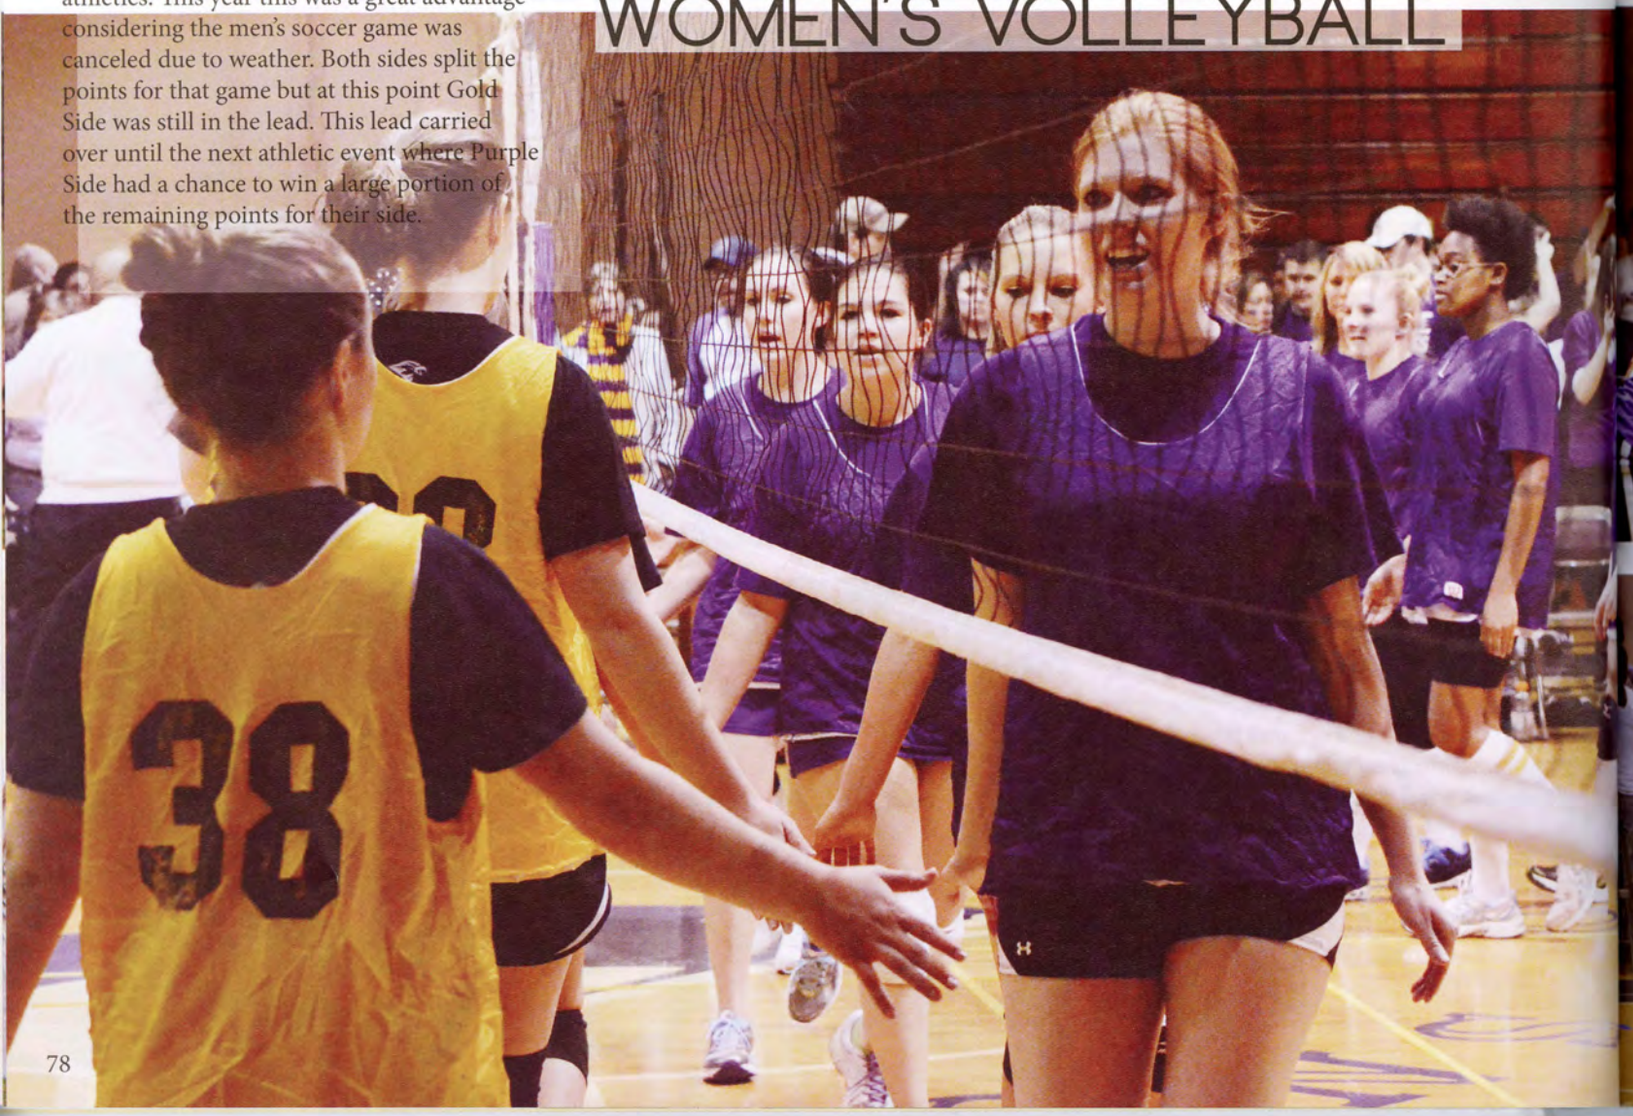
This momentum was short lived as one small mistake lost them the ball sending it to Gold Side's unofficial MVP Crook, as named by Gold Side member Christian Sanchez.

Both sides filled the room with cheers to energize their players and keep them strong. As the final buzzer rang the Gold Side ladies embraced each other on the court as the rest of their side members joined them. Female leader Jana Taunton raced ahead of the crowd to embrace her best friend Bellina, a cute sight for on lookers.

The Gold Side ladies won the first sporting event for their side giving them 25 percent of the the allotted preproduction points for athletics. This year this was a great advantage considering the men's soccer game was canceled due to weather. Both sides split the points for that game but at this point Gold Side was still in the lead. This lead carried over until the next athletic event where Purple Side had a chance to win a large portion of the remaining points for their side.



WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL



WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

This year's women's basketball game was a battle for the ages. The atmosphere was so heavy in the room that each spectator found it hard to breath as each team fought for each and every point earned. Both teams came out of the gate strong prepared to destroy the competition.

At the start of the game and through majority of the half, Purple Side lead the way. Staying ahead by two goals, the Purple girls kept their opponents on their toes. The team was full of strong athletes who love their side, this love and passion is what fueled them. At the close of the half the Purple Side was still a head in points.

The second half was spent in constant a back and forth between the sides. Purple Side women charged up and down the court scoring point after point but as soon as they would score the Gold Side would reply with a goal of their own. Both teams became more and more desperate for points as the timer counted down the minutes. This desperation lead to the girls becoming more physical causing foul after foul. The Gold Side took advantage of this and slowly took the lead from their rivals. The battle of points did not end there.

As the final buzzer rings the scoreboard reveals a tie. Overtime begins.

Fouls continue being popping up left and right as each and every point was fought for. Each side's spectators were on edge with each trip the ball took through the air. Cheers and screams filled Myrick gym to the point the crowd could be heard outside.

The timer was counting down the final seconds and in a moment of heart wrenching panic Gold Side sends the ball swooshing through the net giving them the lead for the final time.

The court is rushed by the Gold Side as they scream, overwhelmed by the actions that had taken place. The gym felt other worldly as the sound grew louder and louder with each passing second.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

The final sporting event of the College Night season is men's basketball, which takes place the Saturday of College Night. Despite all athletics being the same point value in preproduction, the men's game is viewed as the most important; this is probably because of the presence of a large amount of alumni at the game.

The alumni at the game lead cheers and start chants with the current students, showing that side spirit never dies.

Once the game was underway, Purple Side took an early lead scoring several goals within the first minutes on the clock. This lead continued on despite the Golds fighting on the court. With each Gold score made, Purple replied with one, or more, of their own. The first half of the game was dominated by Purple Side thanks to their quick players and smart play calls.

During half time the Gold Side tried to rally their boys together as the cheerleaders took to the floor to perform original routines for each side. The Gold ladies went first and while performing a technically good routine it lacked energy forcing the crowd to generate it o their own. As soon as the Purple cheerleaders hit the floor they demanded the audience's attention. Their routine was not as clean and precise as their opponents, but as soon as Beyonce's hit song "Partition" blasted through the speakers the room was electric.

With the sound of the referee's whistle announcing the start of the second half, the Gold side players fought to make up the ground lost earlier in the game. At one point the scores were almost tied looking like the Gold Side might make a comeback for a win but the Purple players quickly put a few points under their belts to create a buffer. Ultimately, when the final buzzer rang, it was the Purple Side that was on top. Winning this game is what helped fuel their drive for what was to come that night in Palmer.

MR. AND MS. MONTEVALLO

College Night is the culmination of many events on campus that started weeks and months earlier, one such event is the announcement of Mister and Miss Montevallo.

Starting in the fall semester, students apply for these prestigious positions. There are many requirements that must be met for those applying, including GPA average, participation in extracurricular activities, and many more. Over the course of several days, the student body votes for them, narrowing down the candidates to three male and three female.

The 6 remaining candidates for Mr. and Mrs. Montevallo are then announced at the College Night Mixer. Derek Kennedy, Stephen Bulger, Korey Wilson, Maria Ramos, Julia Erwin, and Mary Kate McLaurine wait until mid January for voting to continue. Once again the student body votes on OrgSync, and makes their final decision for Mister and Miss Montevallo.

This year, the male candidates were made up of two Golds and one Purple, while all of the females were all Purple.

Ultimately, Purple Side won both positions with Maria Ramos throwing her "PV' up in the air as she takes the stage for Ms. Montevallo, and male Purple Side leader, Korey Wilson, joining her as Mr. Montevallo.

COLLEGE NIGHT DEDICATION

Every year College Night is dedicated to one special individual, some times even a group of people, who the leaders feel embodies what it is to be Montevallo.

The first dedication was given in 1931 to the parents of the Montevallo students. Many others have been dedicated to faculty, donators, and former students who also have buildings on campus named after them. One year that stands out is 1942 with the dedication being to "people in the service of the USA."

The recipient of this honor is announced on the Friday of College Night before the crowd of hundreds gathered to witness the two plays by the presidents of the University and Student government.

The 2014 College Night is "given" to the director of the UM Physical Plant, Billy Hughes by Rachael Swokowski. Hughes oversees hundreds of employees who keep our campus beautiful and functioning on a daily basis. Hughes was appointed to his current position in 2012, but has been employed by the University since 1992.

In his time here, Hughes has served as interim director and assistant director of the Physical Plant and worked with the Student Government Association to make the campus more energy efficient while also being cost effective.

The Purple Side show "Greek," narrated by a trio of Muses (Cassie Worrell, Madison Fant and Kendra Johnson) begins with an explanation of the predicament the Greek gods have fallen into. Centuries ago, mortals began to stop believing in them. In order to save themselves from fading away, the gods decided to go into a deep sleep until belief in them returned again.

Moving forward to present day, a nerdy college student named Ben (Hunter Brown) runs into and eventually falls in love with another student, Holly (Calliope Pettis). He believes that she is so beautiful that she must have been created by the gods. His belief is so strong that it wakes the gods up from their slumber. The god Dionysus (Jalen Brown) is chosen out of all the gods on Mount Olympus to help Ben because of his experience with debaucherous drunken mortals. He is going to teach Ben how to win Holly's affections, so that the power of love will teach them both to believe and spread belief in the gods to others. Once the belief is strong, the Olympians will wake up Zeus.

However, Hades (Barrington McQueen), tries to interrupt the plan to make this true love happen. He escaped Olympus before the gods went to sleep, and has been living happily on Earth wreaking havoc for mortals. He runs the Underworld Bar & Grill with Persephone (Sydney Fant).

While Persephone is tending the bar, she sees Dionysus, and is thrilled at the news of the Olympians' return. She wants to return to Olympus to see her mother, Demeter (Whitney Quinones). In order to keep her from running back to Mount Olympus, he convinces her that first they must find a replacement bartender. He suggests Holly, and reminds Persephone that the more time she spends arguing is "time with [her] mother that is slipping away".

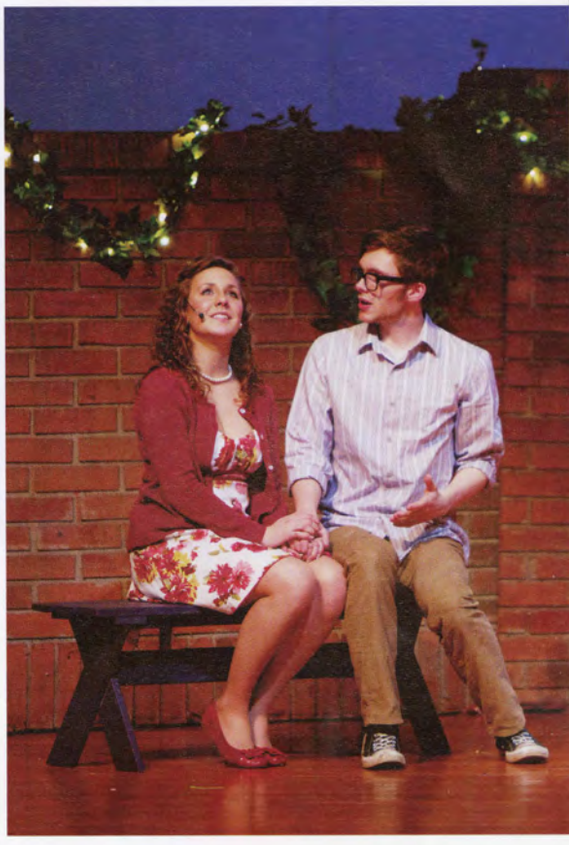
After some detailed instruction by Dionysus, Ben finally succeeds in asking Holly out on a date. They spend time in the university courtyard talking and learning about each other. Ben spills out, "I think you might be The One", which shocks Holly, but she eventually decides that she "likes him anyway". Dionysus, meanwhile, is partying with college students in the courtyard and expressing the joys of the mortal world. While Dionysus isn't looking, Persephone knocks out Ben and kidnaps Holly to the Underworld.

In the Underworld, Hades dances with an unconscious Holly as he sings "this world is mine, all mine". He contemplates how to kill Holly- feed her to Cerberus? Or throw her into the River of Souls?

Before Hades gets a chance to make his decision, Dionysus arrives with Ben. While Ben takes care of Holly, Dionysus and Hades have a fight. Hades gets the upper hand and is about to fling Dionysus into the River of Souls when suddenly a loud voice booms out- "STOP THIS MADNESS!" Persephone realized that Hades was wrong, and brought the Olympians, alongside Zeus, to stop Hades. Zeus declares that because of Hades' wrongdoing, he must now be Persephone's servant. Dionysus is allowed to remain on Earth with the mortals, while the Olympians return to Mount Olympus.

Left: Hades and Dionysus face off in the Underworld while Persephone fetches the rest of the gods on Mount Olympus. Hades' master plan to throw Holly into the River of Souls is foiled when the Olympians arrive in the Underworld to punish Hades for his crimes.

Below: Ben finally gets up enough courage to talk to Holly, his object of affection. He believes that Holly is so beautiful, she could only have been created by the gods. Because of this belief, the Olympians are able to wake from their slumber and begin a Brand New Day.



Above: Hades reminds Persephone that they "must be responsible" and take care of the bar before they go back to Mount Olympus to see her mother, Demeter. He tells her they have to find a replacement bartender before she can leave, and suggests Holly for the job.

Right: Dionysus gives a gleeful embrace to Zeus once he awakes from his slumber as the Olympians watch on in shock. Zeus is the last god to be awakened because the Olympians were afraid of his strong temper in case Ben wasn't a true believer.

Gold Side's show, "Room Service", takes place at the Hotel Ponce de Leon, a vacation spot for the rich and wealthy in St. Augustine, Florida. Famous actress Tina Lamont(Anna Beth Shelton) is hosting auditions for a role she needs filled for a script after her original co-star elopes with a used vacuum salesman.

The guests and staff of the hotel are thrilled at the chance of stardom. The desk clerk, Sugar Valentine(Natalie Bonifay) realizes that it is finally her chance to show off her singing and dancing skills and achieve her potential to be a star.

On the day of the auditions, many try out- including a young ribbon twirler, Little Maxine(Hannah Stegen), the hotel engineer Melvin(Kevin Britt) and one of the maids, Eunice McGillicuddy (Shelley McMoy).

Eunice and her older sister Libby(Michael Tallon) have been dreaming of Eunice's star potential for years, and when her audition arrives, she gleefully tap dances while yodeling her very loudest.

Unfortunately, Ms. Lamont is displeased with the lack of talent. She is ready to look elsewhere, or quit the film entirely.

The film producers are only able to keep her on board by reminding her of her upcoming vacation on the beach

Libby and Eunice make use of their hurt egos and plot to poison Ms. Lamot to take her "out of the picture". They use sleeping pills to knock her out, and hide her in the basement.

When the time for the movie shoot arrives, Tina Lamont is not the one on stage- it's Libby McGillicuddy, cleverly disguised in Tina's performance dress!

The cast of the movie continue to perform until their big salsa number until the end of the song, when they realize that it is really Libby "coming for the kill".

Sugar then returns to save the day- with the help of the bellhops Eugine and Frankie Wallsteen (Michael Cleary, Philip Azbil), she has found Tina Lamont and discovered Libby's treachery!

Libby and Eunice are immediately fired, and Tina asks the young desk clerk if she would like to co-star in her film. Sugar joyously accepts the offer and the two hurry off to prepare for filming.

The remaining hotel staff and guests eagerly await the return of the duo. As they emerge they are dressed in stunning gowns and take their places. Director Cliff Maxwell(Aaron Story) bellows "LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION" and filming begins so that the "Ponce de Leon name lives on."

SO OUR NAME LIVES ON GOLD VICTORY SHOW

Gold Sides's musical was the brainchild of director Katie Raulerson, a junior at Montevallo who has actively played in College Night for three years. "I had a dream about ['Room Service'] and woke up in the middle of the night," said Raulerson who then called her best friend Stephen Billy who wrote and directed the winning Gold Side show the year before, "he told me that I absolutely had to write it."

All of those involved with the production of the Gold show worked very hard to bring a dream to life for their director and it was successful. Despite this, "Room Service" was not able to continue the Golden Chain of wins started in 2011.

"BABY IT'S OUR TURN"

PURPLE BREAKS THE GOLD CHAIN

Mooooove over Gold Side! For the first time in three years, Montevallo has a Purple Victory. Saturday February 8, the Purple Side heard their catch phrase called aloud as SGA President Rachel Swokowski read the famous Dr. Seuss book "Oh the Places You Will Go."

The room was silent as Swokowski's words rang through Palmer auditorium. The tension was high as the anticipation grew with every pause taken. Then within seconds the silence turned into a deafening roar as the Purples began to celebrate.

For a majority of the side, this was their first College Night win. However, every year is considered a victory by all of those who play on both sides.

Purple Side director Alix Black was one of those players. When asked what it was like to win after so many years she replied, "Finally getting that win and knowing that I was a part of creating this beautiful moment for the side will always be really special."

Both sides had a struggle this year with the occurrence of the "snowpocalypse" canceling several days of practice and even one performance night. Ultimately this did not slow down the Purple Side as they gained their beloved PV.

INTO THE WOODS

Stephen Sondheim's beloved musical intertwines the tale of the childless Baker and the Baker's Wife with classic characters such as Cinderella, Jack and Little Red Riding Hood. This witty and poignant musical challenges traditional fairy tale endings with the notion of "be careful of what you wish for" in a world full of giants, witches, princes and, of course, woods! Not suitable for small children.

COMEDIE OF ERRORS

UM Theatre presents William Shakespeare's Comedie of Errors, one of the Bard of Avon's earliest plays, this week.

This comedy involves two sets of identical twins who were separated as infants, and the absurdity surrounding their accidental reunion. Fun and frivolity ensues, including mistaken identity, flirting and wildly entertaining chaos!

UM's production, directed by Tammy Killian with assistant director Jenna McCown and choreography by Alessia Lovreglio, utilizes the "Folio Method" of acting Shakespeare as defined by Patrick Tucker in his book Secrets of Acting Shakespeare: The Original Approach. UM's production uses the text from the First Folio; allowing Shakespeare to direct the production with the clues he has written into the script.

The setting for the UM production is based on original sketches from the period, as are the costumes. Occasionally a group of merry Players appear and perform 'intermezzos' to add to the Elizabethan flavor.

ANAGAMA

Our art department has always given its students unique opportunities when it comes to growing their talents and abilities. One of the most unique activities that students can be a part of it the annual firing of the Anagama kiln. This type of kiln is very rare in the United States, with the University boasting one out of fourteen.

The kiln, also lovingly called the "fat bastard" by builder Scott Meyer, is fired every fall semester and in the spring if there is enough interest. The firing runs 24 hours for three days needing constant supervision from the small army that assembles through all hours of the day.

It takes several days to load the monstrosity before firing can begin. This year the lighting ceremony took place on November 5, 2013. Meyer, with some help from volunteers, pass out sake to those who want it and they toast the kiln in hopes of a successful firing; one shot saved for the kiln itself.

The lighting is only the beginning of the process. For the next three days students and visitors take shifts to care for the kiln and its contents. Anagama's are fed wood from the opening in the front called the fire box as well as through holes up and down the sides. All of the openings must be opened in synchronization so not to disrupt the heat inside, so each group has a shift leader to keep everything flowing perfectly.

This year was more special than normal. A group of artists from the Rochester Institute of Technology, including Meyer's mentor Richard Hirsch, and many other schools came together to test new techniques that have never been done before. Many of the experiments resulted in beautiful one of a kind pieces.

For all of those involved this firing was a memorable one that generated much excitement in the community.

UM OPERA

The University of Montevallo's opera program recently was named a finalist in the National Opera Association's Collegiate Opera Scenes Competition.

Dr. Charles Wood, an associate professor of music and opera, said the program submitted a taped scene from composer Ambroise Thomas' "Hamlet." The scene featured UM students Nidia Riley, Devin Burton and Marie Brewer in the acting roles, while UM professor Dr. Laurie Middaugh was the pianist.

Wood, Middaugh and the students will travel to Portland, Ore., in January to perform the scene live at the finals. Wood said UM was in a tough category this year because two of the three students were older than 23.

"I told them due to the ages, we would be in the upper category for graduate students," he said.

The UM students are all undergraduates, and Wood said he was pleased they successfully competed against graduate students across the country.

Next up for UM's opera program, however, is Opera Scenes on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1. Opera Scenes features students performing scenes from various operas. Riley, Burton and Brewer will perform "Hamlet," which is a dramatic scene, but Wood said the rest are "pretty light-hearted comedic scenes, for the most part."

Students will also perform two scenes from "Albert Herring," which will be performed in full in the spring.

Opera Scenes will be held at LeBaron Recital Hall Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 at 7:30 p.m.

CONCERT CHOIR

The Lord's Prayer
Our Father, which art in heaven
Hallowed be Thy Name,
Thy kingdom come
Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.
And forgive us our trespasses,
As we forgive them that trespass against us.
And lead us not into temptation
But deliver us from evil.

II
Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or in the water under the earth;
thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them:
for I the LORD thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and showing mercy unto thousands in them that love me and keep my commandments.
III
Thou shalt not take the Name of the LORD thy God in vain;
for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his Name in vain.
IV
Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy. Six days shalt thou labour, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the LORD thy God:
In it thou shalt not do any work: thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle,
nor thy stranger that is within thy gates.
For in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seven wherefore the LORD blessed the Sabbath day.
V
Honour thy father and thy mother; that thy days m
which the LORD thy God giveth
VI
Thou shalt do no murder.
VII
Thou shalt not commit adultery
VIII
shalt not steal.

AUGUST GRAD

The University of Montevallo held its summer commencement Friday, Aug. 1, at 5 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium. A reception to honor graduates was held at 4 p.m. in the lobby of Reynolds Hall. Both locations are on the UM campus. The University of Montevallo had Alabama Power Company's vice president of public relations deliver the main address.

John O. Hudson III is the vice president of public relations and charitable giving at Alabama Power Company, president of the Alabama Power Foundation and executive director of the Alabama Business Charitable Trust.

Hudson is also chairman of the board of directors of A.G. Gaston Enterprises, a privately held investment company. He also serves as chairman of Regions Financial Corporation's Diversity Advisory Council.

"The Montevallo family is honored to have John Hudson as our commencement speaker," University of Montevallo President John W. Stewart III said in a press release. "His leadership in our community serves as a wonderful example to the Montevallo graduates he will address. We enjoy a tradition of hosting remarkable, substantive speakers on our campus and are proud that John Hudson will join these ranks," Stewart said.

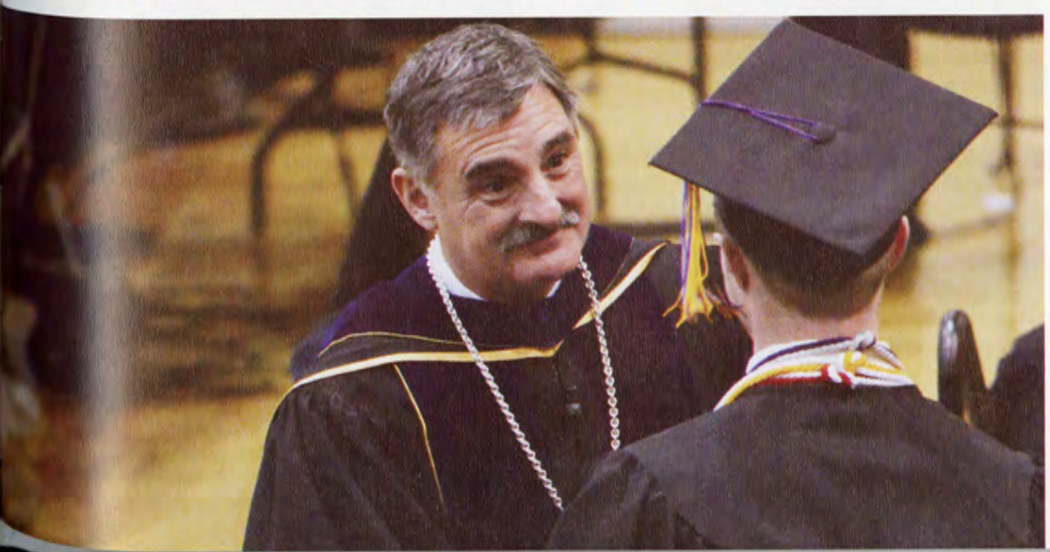
DECEMBER GRAD.

The University of Montevallo held its fall commencement ceremony Friday, Dec. 13, at the McChesney Student Activity Center on the UM campus. Those in attendance had the privilege of hearing Andrew Young, politician, human rights activist and businessman, speak.

Degrees were awarded to 222 students. One hundred fifty-nine students received their undergraduate degrees, while 63 were awarded graduate degrees. The College of Arts and Sciences awarded a total of 57 degrees, while the Stephens College of Business awarded 26 degrees. One hundred students received degrees from the College of Education, while 39 received their degrees from the College of Fine Arts.

The youngest student to receive an undergraduate degree was 21, while the oldest was 56. On the graduate side, the youngest to earn a degree was 23 years old, while the oldest was 54.

Among those graduating were three international students, 10 University Honors Program students, 20 student athletes, four veterans, two who earned an undergraduate 4.0 GPA, 17 who earned graduate highest honors, 29 undergraduates who earned cum laude status, and 21 who earned magna cum laude status.



MAY GRAD

The University of Montevallo Spring commencement started at 9 a.m. on May 3 on the lawn of Flowerhill, the university president's home. A reception for graduates and their families was held at 8 a.m. on the lawn of King House.

Maj. Gen. Frederick M. Padilla with the U.S. Marines was be the speaker at the University of Montevallo's spring commencement ceremonies. Padilla is a career Marine who serves as the Director of Operations with Plans, Policies and Operations at Marine Headquarters in Arlington, Va., according to information provided by the university.

His previous assignments include serving as a commanding officer for a number of units from Camp Lejeune, N.C., to Camp Pendleton, Calif. He also served on the USS Canopus. Padilla participated in Operation Restore Hope in Somalia as well as in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom.

LIFE RAFT DEBATE

The Life Raft Debate, in its 16th year, is sponsored annually by UM's Philosophy Club. According to the website, participants are to "imagine that there has been a nuclear war, and the survivors (the audience) are setting sail to rebuild society from the ground up." Only one seat is left, and the professors must argue for their respective disciplines while audience members listen and cast their votes at the very end.

Starting off the debate was reigning champion Brett Noerager, representing biology. He asked the audience to consider what cataclysmic event brought the audience to sail away in the first place.

"It was science that did this to us," said Noerager to a burst of laughter from the audience. It was science that created global warming, drought, disease, abnormal weather patterns and all that, he said.

Scott Varagona, the eventual winner representing mathematics, started his argument by saying he already knew what audience members were thinking.

"It's 2013, can't we just plug things into a calculator? Can't we just Google the answers to math problems as we need them? NO, because it's the APOCOLYPSE. The Internet is gone. You can't Google the answers anymore. You have to start from scratch," Varagona said with a smile.

And mathematicians are made to start from scratch, he said. Mathematics is also needed to design cities, build buildings, construct bridges that won't collapse and manage economies, he said.

"Embrace mathematics and save the world," he said.

The evening's moderator, philosophy professor Michael Patton, said more than 600 votes were cast.

LEAVING WITH EMPOWERMENT

Words can not describe how grateful I am for those who have helped me create this book. I could not have done this without any of you.

Kane, thank you for being the best sales representative ever. I mean that whole-heartedly. Walsworth is very lucky to have you. Also, thank you for being a good sport that one time I mistook you as a student during my interest meeting. You played it off like a champ!

Amanda, I love you so much. You honestly have no idea howww much you mean to me. I can not thank you enough for being here for me this past year. From venting sessions about heartbreak to staying up all night on a Friday to do the index for me, you really are the best advisor of not only the year, but ever. I meant what I said in the poem that I wrote about you. I love you, Fuddy Duddy.

Becca, God, I have LITERALLY no idea what I would do without you. You have been my backbone and then some this past year. Thank you so much for continuously pushing me and for the countless all-nighters we've had to (attempt to) meet deadlines. Lastly, thank you for being a friend. I am beyond excited to see you grow as the 2014-2015 Montage Editor. You deserve that position more than anyone else I know.

Abigail, you are a Godsend. Thank you for helping me when you didn't have to. Thank you for embedding the idea of being Editor into my head. Thank you for being you. I love and live for you.

Chris, thank you for working in the Stud Pub after you were already so burnt out from your Yearbook. You mean more to me than you know. I love you, Purple Husband!

Heather and Hannah, thank you for sharing an office with me and always telling me I could use whatever I needed to of yours. I thoroughly enjoyed chilling in the office with Oz! Also, Tiffany, thank you for allowing me to have this opportunity.

Natalie, thank you for being a trooper and helping your best friend all year despite the fact that you did the same thing last year with Chris. I love you.

Ashley, thank you for always calling me out and telling me like it was, even when I didn't want to hear it. Thank you for spending long summer nights in my office with me and bringing me dinner!

Cocoa, thank you for being the best Photo Editor/ Zumba buddy ever! I appreciate you so much!!!

Thank you to my staff, who were all so willing to help! I am beyond Blessed to say that I had such an amazing staff like you.

Thank you Dr. Burling and Dr. Gilbert for not getting mad every Wednesday when I would come in late to Undergraduate Research for Psychology because my Yearbook meetings took longer than expected.

Thank you, Amy Brown for keeping me company on my way down to my office every day.

Thank you to all of my friends who I've ditched for Yearbook, and my roommates who have listened to me complain about how constantly stressed I was.

And lastly, thank you, Jenna, for giving me that last push to finish the book. Thank you for never giving up on me. I cherish you so much.

I hope you all enjoyed this book and that it gives you a sense of Empowerment! I am now going to sleep my life away.

CELEBRITY DEATHS

FANS WERE SHOCKED and saddened by celebrity deaths during the year. Paul Walker (pictured), star of the "Fast & Furious" movies, was killed in a car crash. Other celebs who died included Cory Monteith, who played Finn on the TV show "Glee," actor Philip Seymour Hoffman and rock star Lou Reed.

SAN FRANCISCO WAS SAVED from the Penguin and Riddler on Nov. 15 when Miles Scott, 5, was granted his wish by the Make A Wish Foundation. With his leukemia in remission, Miles became Batkid and joined a life-size Batman to battle the villains across the city. Hundreds of volunteers made the event happen.

THE MARVEL SUPER HERO UNIVERSE continued to be as popular as ever. "Iron Man 3" was the highest grossing movie of 2013, and "Thor: The Dark World" was a huge hit in the fall. "Agents of S.H.I.E.L.D." was one of the highest-rated new shows on TV.

A RUSSIAN RESEARCH SHIP got stuck in ice off Antarctica, and after ships from Australia and China tried to free them, the 52 passengers on board were rescued by helicopter after 10 days. The crew stayed with the ship, which was on a mission to study global warming.

FLORIDA STATE'S KELVIN BENJAMIN caught a touchdown pass from Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback Jameis Winston with 13 seconds left, which allowed the Seminoles to defeat Auburn, 34-31, in college football's BCS National Championship Game. Florida State fell behind 21-3 in the first half before rallying to win.

THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT, known to many as Obamacare, launched in October, only to be stalled by a poorly functioning website. Officials scrambled to fix the problems, since Americans had until March 31 to sign up for a health care plan if they didn't have one, or they would be fined.

THE SEATTLE SEAHAWKS DOMINATED Super Bowl XLVIII at MetLife Stadium in New Jersey, defeating the Denver Broncos 43-8. The game featured Seattle's league-best defense against Denver's top-rated offense led by quarterback Peyton Manning, but the game turned into a mismatch as the Seahawks raced to a 22-0 halftime lead. The victory was the first Super Bowl win in franchise history for Seattle.

POPULAR JERSEYS

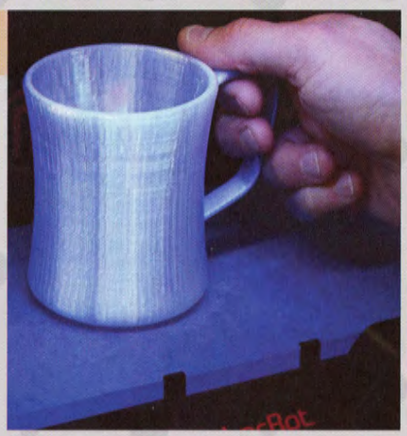
CONCUSSIONS IN FOOTBALL, particularly with young players, became a growing topic of debate. More studies showed that the health risks associated with concussions could be extremely damaging. The NFL reached a $765 million lawsuit settlement with former players regarding the health impacts of concussions.

3D PRINTING TECHNOLOGY became more widely commercially available. The technique, often used for prototyping in engineering and design, allowed users to create a solid 3D object from a digital model.



POPE FRANCIS, known as the People's Pope, spent his first year reinvigorating the Roman Catholic church. As a result, he was named Time magazine's Person of the Year. Pope Francis even was honored in graffiti as a super hero on a Rome building the same week he was profiled in Rolling Stone magazine.

ANTI-BACTERIAL SOAP MAY NOT BE A GOOD THING. The Federal Drug Administration warned that the chemical triclosan in such soaps may be harmful. The FDA proposed a rule requiring makers of antibacterial soaps and body washes to prove the products were safe and more effective than plain soap and water.

CONSIDERED BY MANY TO BE THE GREATEST RELIEF PITCHER EVER, Mariano Rivera of the New York Yankees retired after a 19-year career. The 13-time All-Star finished with 652 saves, a major league baseball record.

DRIVER JIMMIE JOHNSON won seven races on the way to his sixth NASCAR Cup Series Championship. It was Johnson's first Cup victory since he won five in a row between 2006-2010.

KATY PERRY RELEASED HER LATEST ALBUM "Prism," and the first single, "Roar," became a number one hit. Perry made plans for a 2014 world tour and she reached social media icon status by becoming the first person to gain 50 million followers on Twitter.

IT WAS QUITE A YEAR FOR BRUNO MARS, who won Best Pop Vocal Album at the Grammys for "Unorthodox Jukebox." Mars later headlined the halftime show at the Super Bowl, which was watched by a record 111 million viewers.

ECONOMIST JANET YELLEN became the Federal Reserve chairman Feb. 1 when Ben Bernanke stepped down, becoming the first woman in that leadership position. Yellen had served on the Federal Reserve System board and on the Council of Economic Advisers.

MOST POPULAR FAST FOOD CHAINS

Source: QSR magazine

BURGER KING INTRODUCED SATISFRIES, a clever name for its reduced-fat-and-calorie French fries. Reviews on taste were generally good. The fast-food chain said Satisfries were cooked the same way as regular fries, but they absorbed less grease during cooking.

THE CONTROL-ALT-DELETE function to log on to PCs was a mistake. That's what Bill Gates, Microsoft founder, said in a Q&A session at Harvard that was posted to YouTube. Gates said an IBM keyboard designer didn't think there should just be a log-on button to get into a computer.

AVIATION COMPANY TERRAFUGIA held the first public tests of its flying car, called the Transition. The two-person vehicle is capable of converting from a car to an airplane and back, and is still in development.
